CUMMINS MAY QUIT THE RACE

Curtis May Be Elected President Pro Tem of Senate.

REPUBLICAN SOLONS TO MEET

Cummins Urged to Stick to Chairmanship of Interstate Commerce Committee to Prevent It From Falling Into the Hands of LaFollette—Progressive Bloc Also Issues Call For Conference.

Washington, Nov. 24.—Progressive and old guard leaders set the wheels in motion for the fight which is to be made for control of the next senate. Both factions issued calls for conferences, at which "slates" for committee membership and program for legislative action will be agreed on.

The progressive bloc, of which Senator LaFollette is head, will meet next Monday. This was arranged at a conference of Senators Brookhart (Ia.), Johnson (Minn.) and Shipstead of the same state, who comprise the executive committee appointed last summer by Senator LaFollette at the progressive conference.

Senator Smoot announced the meeting of the regular Republican conference, which will be held one week from today. The formal call to all Republicans to join in this conference will be issued by Senator Lodge.

Foremost among the things to be decided upon in the Republican caucus is the agreement upon a candidate for president pro tem of the senate and the filling of important chairmanships. The progressives have not yet decided whether they will contest with the regular Republicans in the filling of these places. It is unlikely that they will have candidates of their own for the places, but they certainly will insist on having a voice in the making of committee assignments and in the filling of committee chairmanships.

The latest gossip in connection with the office of president pro tem is that Senator Cummins, who held the place in the last session, may not get the job after all. It is generally believed now that Cummins will relinquish his ambition to succeed himself in the office, which now carries a salary of $12,000 a year, together with a government automobile, and will stick to the chairmanship of the interstate commerce committee.

Curtis May Land.

In that event the president pro tem will probably go to Senator Curtis of Kansas, who has been the party whip. This would put Senator Wadsworth of New York in line for the office of whip, while Senator Lodge will be selected to succeed himself as Republican floor leader.

Should Cummins decide to step out of the race for the presiding office job, it will be solely because of a desire to prevent the chairmanship of the interstate commerce committee from falling into the hands of Senator LaFollette. The old guard is understood to have almost persuaded Cummins to hold on to the chairmanship rather than permit it to go to LaFollette.

Cummins saw President Coolidge and it was stated after their conference that there is practical agreement between the president and the senator regarding the program of railroad legislation which Cummins has in mind. This contemplates an amendment to the Esch-Cummins law making it compulsory upon railroad systems to consolidate, but allowing them a certain period of years within which to do it.

The president also discussed with the senator the recommendations which will be made in his message on the subject of railway legislation.

Few of the senators now here are the least bit hopeful that any great volume of legislation will be enacted at the coming session. Some of the "elder" statesmen expressed grave doubts that anything more than passage of the appropriation bills, the soldier bonus and some form of tax reduction will be accomplished.

Charged Among Other Things With Diversion of State Funds.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 24.—J. C. Walton, former governor of Oklahoma, was indicted by a county grand jury on charges of diversion of state funds, illegal prevention of an attempted meeting of the state legislature and attempts to intimidate an officer. Dr. A. E. Davenport, state health commissioner, and T. P. Edwards, formerly Walton's chauffeur, were indicted jointly with Governor Walton. Walton's bond was set at $25,000.

CUSTOMS OFFICERS ALERT

Russian Prince and the Crown Jewels Likely to Be Held.

Washington, Nov. 24.—The long lost trail of the Russian crown jewels was renewed with a hue and cry by American customs officers on the arrival of Prince Felix Yousouppoff in New York.

On orders from Washington the jewels, which the prince proposes to market here, will be held until it can be conclusively established that they are his personal property, and even then they may not be sold until a royal ransom in the way of duty is paid. This, however, is just the beginning of the troubles of the Russian nobleman, who makes a boast of having been the prime conspirator in the group that brought about the assassination of the monk, Rasputin. Rasputin was the father confessor of the late Czarina and blamed by most diplomats and many Russians as having been responsible for the downfall of the monarchy. Even should the prince escape the suspicion of bringing to this country the crown jewels, he will still have to encounter the immigration law which applies alike to prince and pauper, it was stated.

WHAT HAS BECOME OF HIS MILLIONS?

Doctor Cook Claims He Hasn't a Cent Left.

Fort Worth, Tex., Nov. 24.—What has become of Doctor Cook's millions?

Everyone was asking this when the former polar explorer failed to raise $75,000 bail fixed by Federal Judge Killits as the collateral for his release pending the result of his appeal from the court's prison sentence.

A mystery was raised when Cook said he didn't have a cent left of the million dollars he took in while promoting various enterprises. What went with the money is not apparent. He lived well and so did his divorced wife, who has been here since his trial started, but none of his known activities have been expensive enough to use up that much money.

In passing sentence on Cook Judge Killits asked him in the name of decency to turn over what money he had to his victims, expressing at the same time his belief that Cook had his money salted away somewhere. Special Assistant Attorney Pratt, who prosecuted Cook, estimated that the ex-polar romanticist took in about $1,116,000 in recent ventures. In addition to that, Mr. Pratt said, investigation had disclosed that Cook made $226,000 as a stock broker selling stock in the Paul Vitek promotion scheme and that he also got $250,000 from a concern in Liverpool, England.

But both the doctor and his former wife are silent. Acquaintances of the former Mrs. Cook said that she lost money in Cook's enterprises, along with his other victims, and is now without funds.

Kelly Quits St. Paul.

St. Paul, Nov. 24.—Mike Kelley confirmed the report that he had purchased a substantial block of stock in the Minneapolis baseball club. He expressed regret at leaving St. Paul.

DEMANDED VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

Stresemann Forced His Defeat in the Reichstag.

Chancellor Blames Government's Fall Upon France's "Almost Unendurable" Pressure on Germany—Communist Party Leaders Defy Decree Issued by the Military Dictator Von Seeckt—Late Developments.

Berlin, Nov. 24.—Dr. Gustav Stresemann, German chancellor, erstwhile "parliamentary dictator" and minister of foreign affairs, fell in "open battle" in the reichstag. He forced his defeat through his demand for a vote of confidence.

The same reichstag which but a few weeks ago, trembling under his threat of dissolution, invested him with extraordinary powers as "parliamentary dictator," took its revenge last night.

Following many hours of verbal bombardment of his administration and his failure in three months to pull Germany out of its political and economical morass, the reichstag overthrew the government by a vote of 230 to 155 against granting him a vote of confidence. Stresemann announced immediately thereafter that the cabinet would resign. Later he presented his resignation and that of his cabinet to President Ebert, who accepted the same.

Immediately after the vote was taken Stresemann received the foreign correspondents in the reichstag. He blamed his fall upon France's almost unendurable pressure on Germany.

In making a charge of militarism against Stresemann, Communist Deputy Rosenfeld declared that the reichswehr had inaugurated "white terror" in Saxony, that 34 persons were killed and 130 wounded in four weeks; that men and women had been gagged, tortured and beaten.

A decree suppressing the Communist party in Germany was issued by General Von Seeckt, in whom President Ebert has concentrated all executive powers, and who is the real ruler of Germany at the moment.

Communist delegates arose on the floor of the reichstag as Froelich concluded and cheered wildly for their party. They jeered and derided the government bench.

"We laugh at your prohibition; we whistle at your decree; we hereby call on the proletariat to battle for life or death against a sinking and for a rising order of society; we proclaim openly the revolt of the German proletariat. Hoch, Hoch, Hoch, for the Communist party and the third internationale." This was the answer of the Communists as voiced by Deputy Froelich.

By a vote of 193 to 166 the reichstag rejected the resolution to try Von Kahr, Hitler and Ludendorff for high treason as the result of the recent outbreaks in Bavaria.

TROUBLE FEARED

When Military Control Commission Resumes Its Operations.

Berlin, Nov. 24.—Serious consequences are feared in the next few days when, as a result of instructions from Premier Poincare of France, the interallied military control commission resumes its operations in Germany. Poincare's instructions to General Nollet, head of the commission in Berlin, are understood to be that nothing must divert him from the most rigid investigation of the present status of armament in Germany. "That Germany has violated the Versailles treaty in regard to military control is not doubted," declared one of the highest allied diplomats. "Every barracks and the arms and munitions of each separate battalion of the reichswehr will be inspected. We have every reason to believe that the 100,000 reichswehr provided for by the treaty of Versailles has been exceeded."

Struck by an Automobile.

Cincinnati, Nov. 24.—Death of W. O. Robinson, 68, who was struck by an automobile, is the fifth auto fatality in as many days this week. Ferdinand Saulberger, 20, auto driver, was charged with manslaughter in the death of Robinson.

Wittenberg Wins.

New Concord, O., Nov. 24.—Wittenberg college defeated Muskingum college here in a football game by the score of 14 to 0.

ABRAHAM BERGE

New Premier of Norway Is Liberal-Conservative.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Alleged Election Bettors Indicted.

Portsmouth, O., Nov. 24.—Sixteen men were indicted for alleged election betting. The list includes Scott W. Wilson, real estate dealer; Dr. Burton, Dr. A. C. Lowry and Postmaster A. W. Abele. Nicholas McMahon, Jr., manager of a theater, was indicted for alleged giving away of prizes to patrons of his theater. F. Campbell, Harry Ulrich and Ernest J. Porter, as the committee of the United Commercial Travelers, which organization recently gave away an automobile, also were indicted.

Missing Student Found.

Delaware, O., Nov. 24.—John Nevin Blair, Ohio Wesleyan university freshman, missing from Delaware since Nov. 1, was found working on a road gang near Louisville, Ky. Blair's father, who came here from his home in Oklahoma to aid in the search for his son, returned here from Louisville with the boy and later left for Oklahoma. Young Blair said he had become discouraged in his school work and left school. He is 16.

Klan Picture Approved.

Columbus, Nov. 24.—The Ohio censor board has approved "The Toll of Justice," a motion picture produced by the Ku Klux Klan, and in which the actors wear masks in most of the scenes. The picture has been produced in and around Columbus. The film is not propaganda, according to the board, and contains nothing that warrants its being prohibited from showing in Ohio.

Skeleton Found.

Gallipolis, O., Nov. 24.—Road men unearthed a skeleton of a man in a box while grading the highway near Point Pleasant, on the north bank of the Kanawha river. The skeleton is believed to be that of Enoch Jeffers, who was dragged from his sick bed and shot to death by "bushwhackers" in 1864, because of his sympathy for the Confederacy.

Harding Memorial Week.

Columbus, Nov. 24.—Governor Donahy has issued a proclamation urging Ohioans to subscribe to the Harding memorial fund and designating the week beginning Dec. 3 as Harding Memorial week. "Ohio should not fail in the matter of honoring one of Ohio's distinguished sons," said the governor in his proclamation.

Girls Missing.

Cleveland, Nov. 24.—A school girl composition describing the wonders and beauties of Porto Rico is the only new clew which police have to locate Jennie Woyelek, 14, and Mary Saleto, 12, who disappeared from their homes Wednesday night.

Burns Prove Fatal.

Youngstown, O., Nov. 24.—James Norris, 23, died of burns received in an explosion at the corner mill of the Grasselli Chemical company, at Quaker Falls, near here. Asa Burton, 53, was killed instantly in the blast. Norris died in Youngstown hospital.

Gunboat Sinks.

Vera Cruz, Nov. 24.—The gunboat Sonora of the Mexican navy sank at her moorings. What caused the vessel to sink is a mystery, but the department of war and marine announced that the hulk will not be raised as the boat was of an obsolete type.

Bandits Seize Payroll.

Cleveland, Nov. 24.—Two bandits held up and robbed W. J. Schaefer and F. A. Deahl, officers of the Griet Brothers' Coalage company of Cleveland, as they carried a $3,000 payroll from a bank to the factory. The men escaped in an automobile.

WET AND DRY ISSUE BOBS UP

Enlivens Contest Over Organization of House.

LONGWORTH ISSUES APPEAL

Urges "Team Work" If the Republicans Are to Have "Any Chance of Success" in the Coming Presidential Election—Ohioan in Contest For Floor Leadership With Graham of Illinois.

Washington, Nov. 24.—An appeal for "team work" if the Republicans are to have any chance of success in the coming presidential election, and injection of the wet and dry issue, further enlivened the contest within the Republican party over organization of the house.

Representative Nicholas Longworth, candidate of the regulars for the majority floor leadership, made public a letter he had written to all Republican members, urging the necessity of presenting a solid front to keep the Democrats from running away with the legislative program.

Representative Lon B. Colton of Utah, a supporter of Representative William J. Graham of Illinois for the leadership, formally charged Longworth with being a wet and advocated his defeat on that ground. Colton pointed out that with the hardest fight yet made on the Volstead law in prospect, the judiciary committee, which has jurisdiction over prohibition bills, is scheduled to be headed by Representative George S. Graham of Pennsylvania, "one of the most bitter and able opponents of prohibition." The Utah member overlooked the fact that Speaker Gillett is a wet, but he added: "And now, to add Mr. Longworth as floor leader, thus giving all key positions in the house organization to the wets is asking too much."

While the Longworth and Graham factions continued their battle, the liberal Republican bloc's plans to tie up the organization of the house unless satisfactory concessions in committee assignments are granted, went forward. Representative John M. Nelson of Wisconsin, head of this group, said all its members were here or on their way and a caucus to determine upon a definite course soon would be held.

Bloc's Strength.

It is conceded that this bloc has sufficient strength to prevent the Republicans from organizing the house, unless there is wholesale absenteeism on the Democratic side. Democratic leaders assert that this will not occur. Nelson declares this power will be used.

On the other side, with but 15 members less than the Republicans have, the Democrats are laying back and enjoying the fun. With harmony and a solid front said to be assured the minority leaders look forward to a most successful session from their viewpoint.

Representative Longworth's letter was in the nature of a reply to the statement of Representative Graham, accepting the nomination of his friends for the leadership. Longworth took issue with Graham's charge of sectionalism in the event of the Ohioan's election and retorted that his election could not mean sectionalism any more than could the selection of a member from Illinois. Longworth said he had hoped for substantial unanimity in the organization of the house, "but in view of recent developments, I take this opportunity of saying that I am in this fight and to stay."

GAINING RECRUITS

Campaign to Drive Immoral Productions From the Stage.

New York, Nov. 24.—The campaign to drive immoral productions from the New York stage continues to gain recruits. Following the recent appeal of Fred Stone, the comedian, that the theater be purged "for the sake of the profession," to which he has just given his daughter, Dorothy, others have taken up the hue and cry.

Ministers of the city have named four plays, two dramas and two musical comedies, they want to see closed. Police Commissioner Enright has appointed three policemen to visit the Broadway playhouses and report on whether licenses should be revoked.

The Rev. George M. Elsbree joined the drive. He has affiliated himself with a committee of 50 that will pass judgment on plays. The committee will include church worker, club women and laymen.

PACKERS TO FIGHT

Resist Federal Government Order to Audit Their Books.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—The great meat packing houses of Chicago have defied the United States to audit their books. Led by Swift & Company and the Cudahy Packing company, the packers announced they would fight the order of Henry C. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, commanding them to make available their books and records for federal auditors.

"We claim on behalf of our 45,000 stockholders the right which the constitution guarantees to all citizens of being permitted (in the absence of specific charges) to conduct our business peacefully, without interference from government agents," L. F. Swift, president of Swift & Company, declared in a formal statement. "If the government has power to maintain accountants in our office, as it claims, it also would have power to establish such accountants permanently in all business offices in the country, a situation on which we believe is unthinkable."

WITH CONCERN

American Government Would View the Collapse of Germany.

Washington, Nov. 24.—President Coolidge feels that the United States together with the other nations of the civilized world would view with a great deal of concern the collapse of Germany. It was learned at the white house following the receipt of news telling of the fall of the Stresemann cabinet. The president, it was stated in his behalf, expects that another government will be formed at Berlin, just as would be the case elsewhere.

Mr. Coolidge, it was added in his behalf, is disinclined to allow the use of the $187,000,000 in the possession of the alien property custodian for the purpose of extending credits to promote trade with Germany and the remainder of central Europe. The president does not feel that the government should use credit in such a way in competition with financial institutions.

Popocatepetl in Eruption.

Mexico City, Nov. 24.—Mount Popocatepetl has again developed into an active volcano. It belched great quantities of ashes, followed later by molten lava. Panic-stricken natives are fleeing the towns to escape the danger. Arrivals from the volcanic regions state that the showers of ashes have completely devastated great fields of grain.

CLINIC PERMITTED

Fight For Birth Control Won in the Chicago Courts.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—The fight for birth control was won in the Chicago courts. A clinic, the first in America, will be established here, it was announced. The foundation for the clinic was laid when Judge Harry M. Fisher in circuit court granted a writ of mandamus directing Mayor Dever and Health Commissioner Bundera to issue a license for a "parents' clinic" to be opened in Chicago. In ordering the Chicago officials to permit the clinic Judge Fisher said he could not subscribe to the argument that such a clinic would tend to increase immorality.

Home of the Soul.

Mrs. Ellen E. Gates. BY PERMISSION. Philip Phillips.

1. I will sing you a song of that beau-ti-ful land, The far a-way home
2. Oh, that home of the soul in my visions and dreams, Its bright, jasper walls
3. That un-chang-a-ble home is for you and for me, Where Je-sus of Naz-
4. Oh, how sweet it will be in that beau-ti-ful land, So free from all sor-

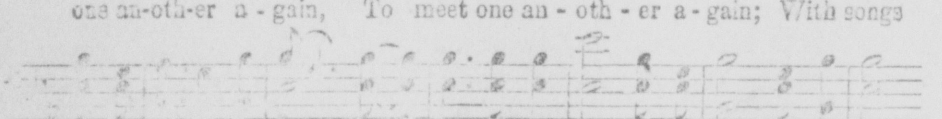

of the soul, Where no storms ever beat on the glittering strand, While the years
I can see; Till I fan-cy but thin-ly the veil in-ter-venes Be-tween ar-eth stands, The King of all kingdoms for-ev-er is He, And He hold-

One time in Philadelphia, I went to visit the old ladies in the Methodist Old Ladies' Home. They took me up stairs and introduced me to a beautiful old lady 107 years of age. We talked about the days and incidents of her childhood, about her people,—her mind was clear and active,—she could talk intelligently about the things that happened away back there. She put her arm thru mine and walked down the stairway with me to the dining room where I sang and played for the old ladies who had gathered there; then she walked back with me to the elevator which would take her back to her room. As she started to step into the elevator, she turned and held out her withered hand to me, and said, "Well, good bye, come again when you can stay," and altho I will possibly never be allowed to go back and stay at the old ladies' home, still thru this one sentence of this dear old saint, I caught a vision of that beautiful hospitality that had been a part of her life all these many years and I could see in my imagination, how she had so many times dismissed her own guests with that phrase, "Come again when you can stay,"—that it was the most natural thing in the world for her to invite me back to the Old Ladies' Home, to stay.

I went to see a crowd of beautiful, sweet, gray haired, wrinkled faced old ladies in a western state one time. I played on the trombone,—then I sang for them. I was rather proud of my singing in those days. After I played one selection and sang one, I said, "Now my time is just a bit limited, and I want to know which you like better, my singing or the trombone, so I will know what to do the most of." Almost unanimously these old ladies said they liked the trombone the best. Then one of them with her beautiful spirit, fearing that I might be hurt at their decision came up and took my hand and explained to me that most of the old ladies were deaf and couldn't hear what I said when I sang and they could hear the trombone and that was the reason they liked it the better, so I didn't feel so badly about it after all.

Here in this old ladies' home, I saw one of the finest examples of cooperation and mutual help that I have ever seen. There were two old ladies who were chums,—one was blind and the other was deaf,—the deaf one would lead the blind one around and the blind one would hear and understand and explain what was being said to the deaf one. The guide of this happy pair brought her friend up to me and said:

"My friend here wants to 'see' that horn!" I divined right away that her method of seeing was to put her hands on it and feel the shape of it, around and put the mouthpiece up to so I put the trombone together and put it into her hands. Then I turned it around and put the mouthpiece to her lips and explained to her how to make a tone on the trombone. With tremendous effort, she blew a blast loud enough even for her deaf friend to hear; all the old ladies clapped their hands and laughed with glee just like little children and I believe they considered that the very best part of all the entertainment.

Just here the other day in Chattanooga I went to the Old Ladies' Home. I usually play some songs of good cheer, like "Brighten the Corner Where You Are," "Every Cloud Will Wear a Rainbow, if Your Heart Keeps Right" Sometimes I play "Yankee Doodle," "Dixie," "Turkey in the Straw" and some of the other old time tunes that I know they will recognize, but when I ask them for the song they want me to sing it is usually one of the wonderful old hymns and most of the time, the beautiful song, "The Home of the Soul." As I started to play it over here the other day, the old ladies would join in with their quivering voices. I could see the "far away" look come into their eyes; using my own imagination just the slightest bit I could see how they were each one going back to the days of their youth and strength, when they had homes and families and responsibilities of their own, then they would turn and look on down in the other direction across the river to that place of reunion when they would once again meet with all the loved ones who had gone on before.

One dear, white-haired old lady said to me as I finished "Thank you so much for playing that song. That was my mother's favorite song. She's over there now. Sometime before long we will meet and clasp hands once more, and sing again on that beautiful shore, the songs we learned to love here on earth." Again I found a great wealth of blessing to carry with me thruout life.

A great field for unexpected blessings we find among the children many times. In Chattanooga, I had a meeting for boys and girls. The day was dark and gloomy and rainy. While there was a fairly good crowd there were not as many as we had hoped would come, but I went on with the meeting just the same. At the close of the service, I gave an invitation to those who definitely wanted to accept Christ as their Saviour to come down around to the front where we could have a little special word of explanation with them and have a prayer together.

Several of them did come, possibly seventy-five or eighty children. As I went away from the meeting, however I found myself wondering if I had really made it plain,—wondering just a bit if it was worth while after all. Just a few days afterward, someone came to me and told me of one little girl among those who had come forward in the meeting. Her father was not a Christian. He had arranged for her to take dancing lessons. The dancing dession came at the same time as the meeting. Circumstances and conditions were such that if she would go to the meeting, she would have to give up her dancing lessons, because she could not continue in the class unless she had attended that particular one that afternoon. After a struggle, she decided to come to the meeting. She came forward and took her stand for Christ. When she went home, at the supper table, her father made some cynical, sarcastic remark about it and it almost broke her little heart. She left the table and went crying to her room. Of course, you can imagine how that affected the father. He saw he had made a mistake. There was nothing he could do then, but a little bit later, after he had gone into their sitting room, the little girl came and climbed up on his lap, put her arms around his neck, and said, "Papa, I gave my heart to Jesus this afternoon,—won't you come and be a Christian, too?" You can imagine how that would affect any father with a real heart or with real love for his little girl any time. I believe the children understand what it means to be a Christian even more than the grown folks, so we must not neglect them nor think lightly of their decisions.

HEAD-HUNTING A RELIGION

Its Abolition Leaves Natives of Solomon Islands Nothing to Live For.

Smug self-satisfaction usually characterizes the attitude of the white man in his dealings with so-called backward peoples. He takes neither the time nor the trouble to understand the races with which he comes in contact until it is too late.

Take, for instance, head-hunting in the Solomons. It was a widespread practice and it came to interfere with the planter in need of labor and the missionary in search of converts. So the administrator was called in. He put an end to head-hunting in short order in the islands where there were white residents, says J. D. Newsom.

Head-hunting was the focus around which centered all the social and religious institutions of the people. Heads were needed as propitiatory offerings to the tribal ghosts on such occasions as building a new house or making a new canoe. And not only were heads needed for religious purposes, but they stood in the close relation to pursuits of an economic nature.

The actual head-hunting expedition only lasted a few weeks, and the actual fighting often only a few hours, but this was the culmination of a process lasting over years. It was the rule that new canoes should be made for an expedition to obtain heads, and the manufacture of these meant work of an interesting nature lasting for many months, probably for years.

The process of canoe building was accompanied by rites and feasts which not only excited the liveliest interest, but also acted as stimuli to various activities of horticulture and pig-breeding. As the date fixed for the expedition approached even more rites and feasts were held.

In putting down head-hunting the alien rulers were destroying an institution which had its roots in the religion of the people and spread its branches throughout nearly every aspect of their culture. At one stroke these islanders lost their religion and their incentive to work and produce. They are dying of sheer boredom, for what has been offered them in exchange is too totally different to make the slightest appeal to their collective imagination.—Adventure Magazine.

Sultana of Sulu's Prayer.

I asked the sultana of Sulu to give me a message on a phonograph cylinder for our sultana and I would send it to Mrs. McKinley, says Lieut. Col. Sydney A. Cloman. She consented and without a moment's hesitation made a splendid record of a worthy message.

I never again doubted the keen intelligence of the old lady. It was to the effect that while she was poor and unwise and Mrs. McKinley was rich and powerful, yet she thought and worked only for the good of her people and hoped that Allah would spare her for a few years to make her people more worthy of the friendship and assistance that the Americans were bestowing upon them.

She closed with a little prayer for the health and happiness of our sultana and some nicely worded good wishes for Mr. McKinley.—World's Work Magazine.

Hare an "Old Settler."
With a known lineage trailing through 3,000 dusty years the hare may well be called one of the ancient inhabitants of the earth. Among the oldest Jews the hare and its near relative, the coney of the rocks, were excluded from the ranks of edible animals; but as the flesh of the hare was found to be both nutritious and wholesome the prejudice against it gradually disappeared and it began to be grown and domesticated for food.

BIBLE USED AS AN ORACLE

Persons "Seeking a Sign" Open Scriptures at Random and Find Message Upon Which Thumb Rests.

A common practice with those who "seek for a sign" is to open the Bible at random and find their answer in the passage upon which their thumb rests as they part the leaves.

In pagan times this divination was accomplished by placing the finger at random on a passage of Homer, Virgil, or some other great author. Virgil was a particular favorite, and the practice of consulting him continued down to modern times, though the Bible is the book now generally used.

During the Middle Ages Virgil became so enveloped in a mist of tradition and superstition that he was al-luded to by the uneducated as "Virgil the Wizard"; and the popular estimation of the chief value of the "Aeneid" was as an oracle.

As late as the time of Charles I the Bible had not entirely supplanted the "Aeneid" for purposes of divination, as is evidenced by the well known story of how that monarch learned his fate by the "Sortes Virgilianae," as it was called.

This practice of divination by books is said to have "originated in the respect and veneration of certain books arising from their wisdom and reputation"; and it is easy to understand the psychology which induced people of the Middle Ages to consult "Virgil the Wizard," and leads men of a superstitious trend of mind today to turn the Bible into an oracle.

The beginning of the idea dates back to the first introduction of letters, when, to the common mind, there was something supernatural in the power of a few marks made in a certain way to convey from one person to another not merely ideas but whole speeches word for word.

The feeling is displayed today by remote tribes of savages when they see for the first time the use of the printed or written word in communication.—London Tit-Bits.

Order of St. Charles, Monaco.
Monaco, a little country of only eight square miles, is an independent principality on the shores of the Mediterranean, near Nice. The famous town of Monte Carlo is within its boundaries. The government has an order, known as the Order of St. Charles. This order was established in 1858 by Prince Charles III to reward services rendered to the principality or to the reigning prince, says the Detroit News. Several Americans have been recipients of the honor. The badge is a white maltese cross resting on a green wreath. In the center is the double monogram "C. C." and a crown on a crimson background, surrounded by the motto "Principes et Patria." The whole is surmounted by a crown. The ribbon is red, with a white band down the center.

SARAH WHITESIDE

Died at Home in Mt. Sterling—Funeral Services and Burial Sunday.

Sarah Celia Whiteside died at her home in Mt. Sterling Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. She was born in Roseville, Pennsylvania, and was the daughter of John and Mary Knapp Stage. On October 15, 1870, she was united in marriage to Thomas Whiteside, who survives. She leaves the following children: William Whiteside, of Cleveland; A. J. Whiteside, of Wilmington; Clinton Whiteside, of Darby township; Adah Wrightsels, of London; Katie Graham, Edward Whiteside and Maud Morris, of Mt. Sterling. She is also survived by two brothers and four sisters: Kate Koontz and Ida Willoughby of Scioto township; Bert Stage, of Pennsylvania; John Stage and Emma Redding, of Mt. Sterling and Stella Barbee, Columbus. The funeral will be held from the Methodist Episcopal church at Mt. Sterling at 2 o'clock Sunday conducted by Rev. J. R. Fields. Interment in the Pleasant township cemetery.

HERE AND THERE

Three men broke into the room of Miss Olive Dupond, girl manager of the Bank Nationale, at St. L'Boire, Quebec, forced her to open the safe, took $8,000 in cash and escaped. It was the second time in three weeks the bank had been robbed, presumably by the same men. In the last robbery the bandits got $11,800.

Two neatly dressed bandits held up Further McGinnis, assistant cashier at the Central Avenue State bank at Indianapolis, and took $1,500 in cash from a counter drawer.

Ten bodies have been recovered from ruins of Vida Sugar Refinery at New Iberia, La., destroyed by boiler explosion. After R. F. Conant and Hanford Warschauer, both of Milwaukee, and a woman passenger, fell 2,000 feet in an airplane, they were arrested at Waukegan, Ill., and fined $10 each because they landed without a permit. None was hurt.

Mrs. William Gendron and two sons, aged 11 and 8, burned to death in a fire which razed their home at Sherbrooke, Quebec.

PHYSICIAN LIVES TO AID AFFLICTED

Least Reward for Dr. Wallace of Belmont, Kan., Is Love.

GAVE TOWN A SCHOOLHOUSE

I look forward each day with the thought that before the sun sets I may get to aid someone afflicted. That's what I live for.—The creed of Dr. Eugene Wallace of Belmont, Kan.

Ask any citizen of the little town of Belmont, Kan., if he knows Eugene Wallace. You'll be surprised at the answer you get. Dr. Wallace is the subject of more enthusiastic and favorable comment among the citizens of the little place than any other country physician in the state.

Belmont is about fifty miles southwest of Wichita in Kingman county and has a population of one hundred and fifty.

Held in High Esteem.

Dr. Wallace graduated from the medical department of the University of Illinois in June, 1905, and returned to Wichita, where his parents live. In a short time he found himself in Belmont, with the intention of staying but six months. He has been there for more than eighteen years.

In that time he has endeared himself to the citizens of the place as no other man in the town has done. Doctors have come to stay awhile since Dr. Wallace has been there, but all moved on. When times have been hard and his people were unable to pay him, he ministered to them regardless. As a consequence they think he is one of the greatest physicians in the state and will call no other doctor.

Built School for Town.

In addition to his ability as a practitioner he has business capabilities which he has used in building up the town. When the need for a high school was felt two years ago a move was made to vote bonds for it. Several persons bitterly opposed it from a taxation standpoint, and defeated the plan. Dr. Wallace then built a $3,500 school house with his own money.

The Farmers' State Bank of Belmont failed in August, 1922. It was not long until farmers and business men realized the need for a bank. The doctor, with several other citizens, founded the Belmont State bank, July 27, 1923, and placed Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wells in charge.

Aids Blind Boy.

He is one of the leading figures in the Methodist church and is responsible for a boy in Kingman being pastor of it. Robert Means, a blind boy, wondered how he was to finance himself in Friends university here. His worries were told to Dr. Wallace.

"Come preach for us this winter," the doctor said, "and we'll see you safely through school."

So the blind boy is preparing himself for the ministry through the kindness and philanthropy of the people of that community. Since he started preaching he has built up the membership of that church and the attendance to unprecedented figures.

"My driver is always ready," is a sign of the doctor's on his drug store window. His resourcefulness is known by the number of telephones he has at his store and at his home—five in each place. They connect directly to as many towns and he usually is in demand at one of the places.

"I Live to Aid Someone."

"Do you regret having come to a small town?" he was asked.

"Not at all," he declared with emphasis, "the doctor's aim in life should be to relieve suffering humanity. One can do that as well here as he could in a big city, and besides, you get to know the people intimately, know their problems—in fact, know nearly everything that tends to bring you in closer touch with them. I haven't become rich, but I am comfortable and I look forward each day with the thought that before the sun sets I may get to aid someone afflicted. That's what I live for."

Dr. Wallace is married and has three sons, Dwight, fourteen; Dwane, twelve, and Dean, eight. He is forty-five years old and his strenuous life has developed for him a powerful physique.

WOMAN SPEEDER IS SHY

Too Bashful to Appear in Court, So Husband Acts as Proxy.

Dreading, through modesty and bashfulness, to appear before Judge Charles W. Boote in Yonkers court in New York to make her first report on probation, Mrs. Dorothy Scully, twenty-one, of 133 West Ninety-second street, Manhattan, waited outside the building and sent her husband inside as her proxy.

She traveled about twelve miles to report in court, and then did not have the courage to walk in. Her husband, appearing for her, told Judge Boote she was too shy to come in. The judge smiled and excused her, but advised her husband to caution her against further speeding in her automobile. Recently she was placed on probation on a speeding charge preferred by Police Sergeant Thomas Morrissey, who had handed her a summons.

Many Requests for Pensions.

As a result of the World war, the French pension office has received 2,500,000 claims for pension or allowance, of which number 1,712,000 were granted.

CURE FOR SEA SICKNESS

Origin of the Game of Mah Jongg Three Thousand Years Ago Told in Chinese Legend.

Some 3,000 years ago, according to the legend, there was a fisherman named Sze who lived on the shores of the East Chien lake near Ninkpo. Sze's family had considerable wealth, and they backed him in the purchase of several boats.

Then he employed a hundred fishermen from other villages. All went well until the wind began to blow, for all of the fishermen were "land" fishermen. They became seasick and had to be taken ashore.

A family council was held, and it was decided that seasickness was merely a matter of the mind. Therefore the thing to do was to devise some method for getting the men's minds off their mal de mer. Fisherman Sze and his brothers then thought long and seriously, and the result was a game which they called Mah Dian. So there one has the origin of "Mah Chang," "Mah Choh," "Mah Jongg," "Mah Juck," "Pe Ling," "Pung Woo," "Mah Cheuk," or whatever you desire to call this game of the ancient Chinese.

Free State to Make Loan.

Dublin, Nov. 24.—The success of the Free State loan is assured, following the speech of Ernest Blythe, minister of the local government in support of the loan. Dublin commercial men promptly subscribed $2,500,000, and big commercial leaders throughout Ireland are sending in generous subscriptions.

Attempted to Hold Up Bank.

Cleveland, Nov. 24.—Four young bandits held up the South Side branch of the Cleveland Trust company, then fled empty handed when their intended victim, Samuel Klemosky, manager, sounded the burglar alarm. A fifth member of the band remained in an automobile outside the bank.

Four Boys Held.

Cincinnati, Nov. 24.—Four youths, arrested when their target shooting resulted in the death of Frank Vano-vang, 13, on the porch of his home, are charged with manslaughter. Anthony Caletta, 23, one of the quartet, admitted owning the rifle with which the target shooting was done.

ROAD ROLLER

To be Purchased and City Building Will be Remodeled.

The city council met pursuant to adjournment Friday evening, November 23, with President Felix R. Caldwell presiding and all members present.

Mr. Jeffries, as chairman of the committee consisting of all the members of council to whom had been referred the matter of a purchase of a road roller recommended that the city purchase a road roller in a sum not to exceed $2000. This report was accepted.

An ordinance to issue and sell bonds for the purpose of remodeling, repairing and re-roofing with suitable materials for office purposes and other proper or required needs of a part or all of the city building was passed under suspension of the rules.

An ordinance amending ordinance No. 332 fixing the salary of the clerk of council of the city of Circleville, Ohio and repealing said original ordinance was passed under suspension of the rules.

THANKSGIVING

Program Rendered by Lutheran Brotherhood Thursday Evening.

The Lutheran Brotherhood met in the social room of the church on Thursday evening, November 22, after the regular business session. A Thanksgiving program was given with George C. Griffith in charge: "Origin of Thanksgiving" B. L. Hanselman; "What the City Man has to be Thankful For" Ed. Hulse; "Thanksgiving when I was a Boy" J. R. Noecker; "Stripes" R. L. Brehmer. The program was one to be long remembered by all present. An excellent lunch was served by Edward Ebert and his assistants. The next meeting will be held on December 13.

The manners, dress and customs of the folk of the 1850's are admirably shown in "Children of Jazz" a new Paramount picture, based on Harold Brighouse's play "Other Times," which will be on view at the Met theater for three days beginning Monday. Theodore Kosloff, Ricardo Cortez, Robert Cain and Eileen Percy, all well known screen players, are featured.

Richard Forestall, an adventurer, is the son of a queer man living on an island with a score or more of dependents, all of whom seemingly belong to the era of the fifties. Their dress, manners and social customs are so radically different from those of today as to render them racially distinct. It is these folk in the story that make "Children of Jazz" as different from the ordinary photoplay as day is from night.

It happens that Richard Forestall loves Babs Weston, daughter of a man of wealth. She is a modern jazz girl and when she engages herself to three men, Forestall renounces her in despair. She comes to the island with her jazz-loving friends in a hydroplane which is all but wrecked in a storm, and then things begin to happen. Thrill after thrill ensues until the climax which is one of the most novel ever pictured.

The picture was directed by Jerome Storm, who directed Charles Ray's most famous pictures. The adaptation was made by Beulah Marie Dix. The supporting cast is exceptionally artistic.

ALL DAY MEETING

Woman's Home Missionary Society Had Picnic Dinner and Supper.

One of the most interesting meeting on record in the Woman's Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church was the all day meeting held November 22. The families joined in a picnic dinner and supper and the ladies sewed upon articles for the supply box.

The program was most interesting and full of facts. Mrs. Paul Kelsner presented the chapter of the text book "Saving Young Bodies." Miss Phelps aroused much interest in the local conditions by her talk and the demonstration of her methods. Miss Letha Beavers impersonated Columbia in a spirited competitive presentation of facts about welfare work in the United States.

Delightful music was given by Miss Grimes, Mrs. Kelsner and Mrs. Johnson with Mrs. Smith as accompanist.

The programs on the text book "The Child and America's Future" are attracting many women interested in children and their welfare.

Chameleons' Food.

The proper diet of chameleons and lizards consists of flies and other insects; also meal worms, and the common idea that sugar and water will serve in winter is incorrect. A good many of these animals refuse food in the winter months and all of them need warmth and sunshine, as well as water. They are difficult to keep in health, and if not given their natural food will starve to death in time, though their ability to fast for long periods is well known.

DAYBREAK IN THE CATSKILLS

Delicate Streak of Lavender Bespeaks the New Day—Silence Interrupted by a "Whippoorwill."

The clock on the mantel strikes four. The only other sound is a momentary gnawing of wood by a field mouse somewhere on the roof. A delicate streak of lavender bespeaks the day, and the clock ticks on.

Again the hour strikes, and the narrow strip of lavender has widened. The deep blue of the night clouds has turned to soft gray, outlining a low ridge of mountains on the opposite side of the valley. The rich liquid note of a thrush rings through the stillness, then pauses, and all is quiet save the ticking of the clock. As the light increases, the sweet song of the thrush continues, interrupted only by an emphatic "Whippoorwill," repeated rapidly, and again there is silence.

In the distance, a crow calls his flock to early matins. Somewhere in a nearby pine tree a red squirrel burrs and a chipmunk chips. Down in the meadow, far, far below, the tinkling of a cowbell announces the awakening of farm life. A gentle breeze rustles the foliage of some young oaks near the window, while the full melody of the thrush welcomes the rising sun.

Fisherman's Lucky Day.

A 14-carat gold band ring was found by John Moore, one of the crew of the fishing schooner Gertrude De Costa, inside a big halibut caught on George bank recently. The ring is a man's size and is believed to have been dropped overboard from some trans-Atlantic liner. Judging from its condition when recovered from the halibut's stomach by Moore, the ring had been lost recently. Moore will wear it, as there is no way of determining the ownership.

Suit For Money.

Frank A. Brown of Ross county, has filed a suit against Samuel Kendrick for money only in common pleas court amount claimed $250. Wilby G. Hyde represents the plaintiff.

Turbans and Nests.

The turban is a fashionable head-dress in Burma, and each girl eagerly looks forward to the time when it will be her privilege to swathe her head in yards and yards of dark cloth. But, until she has found a young man who is willing to build her a bamboo house and to raise rice for her, she cannot wear this coveted headdress. Because among the Kachins unmarried girls are not permitted to wear a turban nor do they let their hair grow long. They wear bobbed hair and have done so for centuries. But the day a Kachin girl is married she lets her hair grow and binds it up with the turban, which she wears with pride. For the turban marks her as a married woman.

Duplicity Exposed.

A story is told of a country dweller who had sadly neglected his worship. A deputation from the class meeting urged his reappearance. He took part in a prayer meeting on his return, and was offering loud thanksgiving for the privilege of meeting together for worship, when suddenly one of the deputation shouted: "Dinna believe 'im. Lord; we'd a terrible hard job to get 'im back."—London Answers.

Save Paraffin From Lily Cups.

By means of a process developed by the United States forestry products laboratory, both the paraffin and the cup contained in discarded waxed paper are now recovered. In view of extensive use of the individual drinking cups the saving represented by this process is very great.

Not Merely Ordinary Hunger.

My aunt, who is noted for her skill at baking cakes and cookies, is very popular with the younger members of our family. One day while my small brother, aged 4, was visiting her he mentioned that he was hungry. Upon being presented with a piece of bread and butter, he said, "Oh, thank you; I'm not that kind of hungry, I'm only cake hungry."—Exchange.

Solitudes of the Earth.

The Bushmanland desert, in south-west Africa, is but little known. A few nomads—some of European and some of mixed descent—hang on its fringe. Here and there mat-house villages, whose dwellers depend on the sparse bounty of the sky, will perhaps be found for a season. Otherwise it is a barren desert of 50,000 square miles.

Coat as Gorgeous as Bright Navajo Blanket

Warm woolen material, heavily embroidered, is the interesting feature of this new French coat. Broad bands of fox trim the collar, cuffs and hem.

Should Consider Your Windows and Hangings

No one would quarrel with the statement that windows are for the purpose of admitting light and air into a room. But that windows enter far more extensively into the planning of a house than the foregoing statement would seem to imply is also easily to be understood. We must consider them as decorative units from the outside of the house and from the inside of the various rooms. These two viewpoints must be closely related, while at the same time recognizing that they are different problems. Then, too, windows must be considered from the purely decorative standpoint—the utilitarian side entirely forgotten.

Windows, therefore, for much of the time that we spend in our homes are as much a part of the purely decorative of its finish as is the cornice, dado, etc. In addition to these various phases of window treatment we have to consider window draperies and shades.

From all of these aspects we discover that in planning and in finishing much consideration must be given to position, actual and relative size, character, furnishing accessories.

Windows should not exceed the bounds of utilitarianism, beyond this they automatically become inartistic. Any light, to be agreeable to the human eye, must not be exaggerated. Just as there should be no uncovered electric light bulb in the house so should there be no window admitting intolerable light.

Blue Is Among Favored Fabrics for Evening

Among the colors that have been introduced for the present season one finds a marked favor accorded certain shades of blue, notably those that are found in the art work and embroideries of China. Distinguished by brilliancy, they are handled with great skill and are vastly more becoming than one would suspect, for in modern designing even the smallest bit of color is employed with telling effect.

Sapphire blue comes in for a great deal of attention, especially in frocks designed for evening wear. Almost without exception they are fashioned on slender, graceful lines, with a note of contrast introduced in silver embroideries or motifs of crystal beads and brilliants.

As an exception to the general scheme of blue and crystal, one frock is of sapphire blue velvet, but its sole decoration consists of appliques of chiffon in shades of mauve and orchid. Accompanying this is a cape of velvet in the same tone lined with cloth of silver shot with mauve.

Snap-on Trimmings May Be Applied to Same Hat

Five different kinds of snap-on trimmings may be applied to the same hat. Either a small cloche shape or a large mushroom is good, though the trimmings may be applied to any shape whatever.

One trimming consists of three wheel ornaments made of ribbon and attached to a band of ribbon which culminates in a semitallered bow. Snaps are fastened to this trimming on the under side to correspond with snaps that have been sewn to the hat, so that all lady has to do is look over her array of ribbon trimmings and choose the one that matches her costume and snap it onto her hat. When a new costume is worn she merely unsnaps this trimming, chooses another and applies it in the same way.

Taffeta Pillows Are Most Attractive. Taffeta pillows of all shapes and sizes are seen in an interesting display. They are particularly attractive when made of changeable taffeta and simply trimmed with rows of the new narrow ribbons that have a suggestion of metal about them.

Graphite Paint.

The growing exclusion of lead from paint, on the ground of its poisonous character, has led to the introduction of graphite as a substitute, particularly in the place of red lead in the painting of iron. Mixed with linseed oil, graphite protects the iron against rust, and is much cheaper than red lead. So many new uses have been found for graphite, which not long ago was employed almost exclusively for the manufacture of what we call "lead pencils," that large quantities are now made with the electric furnace, the natural deposit of the mineral not being sufficient to supply the demand.

First American Grammarian.

The first American grammarian to attain distinction, Lindley Murray, died nearly a century ago. He was a native of Pennsylvania and a Quaker, and his famous "Grammar of the English Language" was the first textbook of its kind written by an American to be used in the schools on this side of the Atlantic. It first appeared in 1795.

The Zenith of Stove Perfection

The only jointless leg bottom and base with full radiation and large ash pan that is on the market! or has ever been made in the history of the stove industry.

The jointless leg bottom and base makes the stove air-tight below the grate, which is the only true fire keeping principle.

It will be as good a fire keeper twenty years hence as it is today.

The Hot Blast Air-Tight Florence will heat twice the space that can be heated by any other stove on earth at one-half the cost.

The only perfect floor heater that is or has ever been made.

All features are patented and no stove manufacturer, dealer or user can copy or use same until the expiration of the patent without incurring liability for an action for damages.

THE HOT BLAST AIR-TIGHT FLORENCE burns soft coal or slack and all the smoke and gases. No filling up of the stove, pipe or flue with soot. No dirt inside or outside the house. It will burn hard coal and all the gases which escape from the hard coal base burner. It will burn wood and sawdust, wet or dry. It will produce one-half less ashes than any other stove on earth with any kind of fuel and leave no clinkers or half consumed fuel.

Grow Cucumbers in Greenhouses

It Is One of the Most Promising of Vegetable-Forcing Crops Produced.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Directions for the growing of greenhouse cucumbers are given in Farmers' Bulletin 1320, "The Production of Cucumbers in Greenhouses," by James H. Beattie, horticulturist, of the United States Department of Agriculture, which has just been released for distribution.

Greenhouse-grown cucumbers, says the bulletin, occupy a high place in the estimation of those who have learned to appreciate their superior quality. While the cucumber is not high in food value, it is extremely popular, owing to the fact that it is an appetizer with a sprightly flavor which appeals to most palates. The development of the vegetable-forcing industry in this country was largely influenced by the winter demand for cucumbers, lettuce, and tomatoes, and these have always been the most important vegetable-forcing crops produced in the various sections of the United States. According to available records, cucumbers are second in importance, with lettuce occupying first place. These crops represent at least 90 per cent of the $15,000,000 annual value of the vegetable-forcing crops produced in this country.

Factors Influence Growth.

Many factors have influenced the growth of the vegetable-forcing industry in the sections where it has attained considerable importance. The modern forcing house makes it possible to produce a high-grade product over a wide range of seasons and to put it on the market within a few hours after it is harvested. Cucumbers grown in this manner can be carried to the proper stage of maturity on the vines and put into the hands of the consumer in a fresh state. Few vegetables lose more in quality by not being served perfectly fresh than does the cucumber. The use of the forcing house makes it possible to mature the crop at seasons when the outdoor-grown crop is not available. Moreover, it is possible to grow greenhouse cucumbers so that they can be marketed in competition with much of the outdoor-grown crop produced in the winter-gardening sections of the country, which has been off the plant for a considerable period and which must bear an exceedingly high transportation and handling cost before it reaches the consumer.

Essentials for Success.

Success depends on the kind of greenhouse used, the availability of cheap fuel and labor, ready access to suitable markets, and close attention to details, says Mr. Beattie. Cucumber forcing is a highly specialized form of work, and under favorable conditions the industry is profitable. The bulletin discusses the essentials of the industry including the best types of greenhouses to use, soils and fertilizers, varieties to grow, management of the crop, harvesting and marketing, and other crops to grow during the short days of midwinter.

The yields depend upon the care and attention given the crop. Under favorable conditions from 30 to 60 cucumbers may be expected from each plant. As many as 100 to 120 cucumbers have often been gathered from a single plant. As a rule, heavier yields will be secured from spring grown cucumbers than are had from a fall or winter crop. The price received varies greatly and may range from as low as 50 cents to $2 or more per dozen.

The cucumber is one of the most promising of the vegetable-forcing crops, but it can be successfully produced only by paying close attention to all the details of this highly specialized industry. Copies of the bulletin may be secured by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., as long as the supply lasts.

Satisfactory Formula for Damp-Proof Facing

A very satisfactory damp-proof kalsomine for plaster walls is made as follows: Take 16 pounds of paris white, or extra glider's whiting and dissolve it in one gallon of boiling water; soak half a pound of white sizing glue for four hours in half a gallon of cold water and dissolve in a water bath; dissolve one-quarter pound phosphate of soda in one-eighth of a gallon of boiling water; mix the first and last mixtures together and then add the second. If a thicker stock is required use a half gallon of water instead of a gallon in which to dissolve the paris white.

Artificial Lights Will Increase Egg Production

Addition of extra windows, particularly near the floor will allow more light to enter the houses in the early evenings of winter and keep the chickens from going to roost.

This addition will increase the length of the day for the chickens and have a good result on egg production.

Many poultrymen have installed electrical apparatus in the poultry houses so that lights can be turned on in the early morning to get the poultry to scratching and feeding earlier. The lights can also be kept on in the afternoons with better production results.

The difference in the number of eggs produced will more than pay the additional costs of increased light.

Flight of Geese.
When flocks of wild ducks and geese have to go long distances they form a triangle to cleave the air more easily, and the most courageous bird takes position at the forward angle. As this is a very fatiguing post, another bird ere long takes the place of the exhausted leader.

Date of Christ's Birth.
The Christian era, first used by a monk, Dionysius Exiguus, in the year 533 A. D. and adopted by Christian nations at a later period, was intended to begin with the birth of Christ. Dionysius is believed, however, to have made an error in fixing that event in the year of Rome 754 instead of 750. Christ's birth is now considered to have taken place in or before the year 4 B. C.

BUFFALO AGAIN TO LIVE WHERE FIRST DISCOVERED

White Men First Viewed Animals in Mexico 400 Years Ago.

Washington.—The recent gift of three buffalo to the government of Mexico recalls the discovery and early history of these big game animals. The gift will be sent from the herd maintained by the United States Department of Agriculture on the Wichita game preserve, Oklahoma, to the zoological park in the City of Mexico, almost on the very spot where the buffalo was first discovered by Europeans.

The biological survey points out that 400 years ago, when Cortez entered Montezuma's capital, on the present site of the City of Mexico, white men had their first view of buffalo, a herd of which was maintained in the menagerie of the emperor. This was in 1521, when buffalo roamed in millions over the tablelands of northern Mexico and the great plains of the present western United States.

An early writer, Antonio de Solis, who first described Montezuma's menagerie, declared that the greatest rarity in the collection was the "Mexican bull," which had crooked shoulders, a bunch on its back like the camel, and its neck covered with hair like the lion. It was in these terms that he characterized the American buffalo or bison.

As a manifestation of good-will toward our southern neighbor, a gift of three buffalo was tendered the Mexican government by the United States Department of Agriculture and the New York Zoological society.

Gets Chairs Made of Tree Planted by Queen

Hingham, Mass.—Wood from an oak tree planted by Queen Elizabeth went into the making of three chairs which have been shipped from Hingham, Norfolk, England, to this town. They are the gift of Harry C. Tofts, a builder in the English Hingham, to the Bay state township which was founded by men from the Norfolk town in the Seventeenth century.

Sixteen years ago the top of the tree planted by the great queen at Kimberly park died and it became necessary to fell it. Mr. Tofts bought the timber and made the chairs, which were designed by Hugh Mottram after a model of a chair in the period when the Hingham men emigrated to America. Mr. Tofts stipulated that one of them should be used by the chairman of the board of selectmen, one placed in the first parish meeting house, erected in 1681, and the third to go to the minister of the First Parish church in perpetuity.

Wonderful Feat of Surgery in France

Paris.—Two cases of what has been considered hitherto an incurable disease were presented lately to the Society of Neurology of Paris. Tumors pressing on the spinal marrow have always proved fatal owing to the difficulty of diagnosing them and of locating them. Professor Sicard has introduced a method of injecting iodized oil into the bony canal formed by the vertebrae of the spine which enables an X-ray to be taken, showing where the iodine has been deposited, and where the deposit has been interrupted by the tumor. The exact spot for operating is thus seen.

The application of this method is described as delicate but not extremely difficult, nor beyond the power of any good surgeon.

CUMMINS MAY QUIT THE RACE

Curtis May Be Elected President Pro Tem of Senate.

REPUBLICAN SOLONS TO MEET

Cummins Urged to Stick to Chairmanship of Interstate Commerce Committee to Prevent It From Falling Into the Hands of LaFollette—Progressive Bloc Also Issues Call For Conference.

Washington, Nov. 24.—Progressive and old guard leaders set the wheels in motion for the fight which is to be made for control of the next senate. Both factions issued calls for conferences, at which "slates" for committee membership and program for legislative action will be agreed on.

The progressive bloc, of which Senator LaFollette is head, will meet next Monday. This was arranged at a conference of Senators Brookhart (Ia.), Johnson (Minn.) and Shipstead of the same state, who comprise the executive committee appointed last summer by Senator LaFollette at the progressive conference.

Senator Smoot announced the meeting of the regular Republican conference, which will be held one week from today. The formal call to all Republicans to join in this conference will be issued by Senator Lodge.

Foremost among the things to be decided upon in the Republican caucus is the agreement upon a candidate for president pro tem of the senate and the filling of important chairmanships. The progressives have not yet decided whether they will contest with the regular Republicans in the filing of these places. It is unlikely that they will have candidates of their own for the places, but they certainly will insist on having a voice in the making of committee assignments and in the filling of committee chairmanships.

The latest gossip in connection with the office of president pro tem is that Senator Cummins, who held the place in the last session, may not get the job after all. It is generally believed now that Cummins will relinquish his ambition to succeed himself in the office, which now carries a salary of $12,000 a year, together with a government automobile, and will stick to the chairmanship of the interstate commerce committee.

Curtis May Land.

In that event the president pro tem will probably go to Senator Curtis of Kansas, who has been the party whip. This would put Senator Wadsworth of New York in line for the office of whip, while Senator Lodge will be selected to succeed himself as Republican floor leader.

Should Cummins decide to step out of the race for the presiding office job, it will be solely because of a desire to prevent the chairmanship of the interstate commerce committee from falling into the hands of Senator LaFollette. The old guard is understood to have almost persuaded Cummins to hold on to the chairmanship rather than permit it to go to LaFollette.

Cummins saw President Coolidge and it was stated after their conference that there is practical agreement between the president and the senator regarding the program of railroad legislation which Cummins has in mind. This contemplates an amendment to the Esch-Cummins law making it compulsory upon railroad systems to consolidate, but allowing them a certain period of years within which to do it.

The president also discussed with the senator the recommendations which will be made in his message on the subject of railway legislation. Few of the senators now here are the least bit hopeful that any great volume of legislation will be enacted at the coming session. Some of the "elder" statesmen expressed grave doubts that anything more than passage of the appropriation bills, the soldier bonus and some form of tax reduction will be accomplished.

Charged Among Other Things With "Division of State Funds."

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 24.—J. C. Walton, former governor of Oklahoma, was indicted by a county grand jury on charges of diversion of state funds, illegal prevention of an attempted meeting of the state legislature and attempts to intimidate an officer. Dr. A. E. Davenport, state health commissioner, and T. P. Edwards, formerly Walton's chauffeur, were indicted jointly with Governor Walton. Walton's bond was set at $5,000.

CUSTOMS OFFICERS ALERT

Russian Prince and the Crown Jewels Likely to Be Held.

Washington, Nov. 24.—The long lost trail of the Russian crown jewels was renewed with a hue and cry by American customs officers on the arrival of Prince Felix Youssouf in New York.

On orders from Washington the jewels, which the prince proposes to market here, will be held until it can be conclusively established that they are his personal property, and even then they may not be sold until a royal ransom in the way of duty is paid. This, however, is just the beginning of the troubles of the Russian nobleman, who makes a boast of having been the prime conspirator in the group that brought about the assassination of the monk, Rasputin. Rasputin was the father confessor of the late Czarina and blamed by most diplomats and many Russians as having been responsible for the downfall of the monarchy. Even should the prince escape the suspicion of bringing to this country the crown jewels, he will still have to encounter the immigration law which applies alike to prince and pauper, it was stated.

WHAT HAS BECOME OF HIS MILLIONS?

Doctor Cook Claims He Hasn't a Cent Left.

Fort Worth, Tex., Nov. 24.—What has become of Doctor Cook's millions?

Everyone was asking this when the former polar explorer failed to raise $75,000 bail fixed by Federal Judge Killits as the collateral for his release pending the result of his appeal from the court's prison sentence.

A mystery was raised when Cook said he didn't have a cent left of the million dollars he took in while promoting various enterprises. What went with the money is not apparent. He lived well and so did his divorced wife, who has been here since his trial started, but none of his known activities have been expensive enough to use up that much money.

In passing sentence on Cook Judge Killits asked him in the name of decency to turn over what money he had to his victims, expressing at the same time his belief that Cook had his money salted away somewhere. Special Assistant Attorney Pratt, who prosecuted Cook, estimated that the ex-polar romanticist took in about $1,116,000 in recent ventures. In addition to that, Mr. Pratt said, investigation had disclosed that Cook made $226,000 as a stock broker selling stock in the Paul Vitek promotion scheme and that he also got $250,000 from a concern in Liverpool, England.

But both the doctor and his former wife are silent. Acquaintances of the former Mrs. Cook say that she lost money in Cook's enterprises, along with his other victims, and is now without funds.

Chancellor Blames Government's Fall Upon France's "Almost Unendurable" Pressure on Germany—Communist Party Leaders Defy Decree Issued by the Military Dictator Von Seeckt—Late Developments.

Berlin, Nov. 24.—Dr. Gustav Stresemann, German chancellor, erstwhile "parliamentary dictator" and minister of foreign affairs, fell in "open battle" in the reichstag. He forced his defeat through his demand for a vote of confidence.

The same reichstag which but a few weeks ago, trembling under his threat of dissolution, invested him with extraordinary powers as "parliamentary dictator," took its revenge last night.

Following many hours of verbal bombardment of his administration and his failure in three months to pull Germany out of its political and economical morass, the reichstag overthrew the government by a vote of 230 to 155 against granting him a vote of confidence. Stresemann announced immediately thereafter that the cabinet would resign. Later he presented his resignation and that of his cabinet to President Ebert, who accepted the same.

Immediately after the vote was taken Stresemann received the foreign correspondents in the reichstag. He blamed his fall upon France's almost unendurable pressure on Germany. In making a charge of militarism against Stresemann, Communist Deputy Rosenfeldt declared that the reichswehr had inaugurated "white terror" in Saxony, that 34 persons were killed and 130 wounded in four weeks; that men and women had been gagged, tortured and beaten.

A decree suppressing the Communist party in Germany was issued by General Von Seeckt, in whom President Ebert has concentrated all executive powers, and who is the real ruler of Germany at the moment.

Communist delegates arose on the floor of the reichstag as Froelich concluded and cheered wildly for their party. They jeered and derided the government bench.

"We laugh at your prohibition; we whistle at your decree; we hereby call on the proletariat to battle for life or death against a sinking and for a rising order of society; we proclaim openly the revolt of the German proletariat. Hoch, Hoch, Hoch, for the Communist party and the third internationale." This was the answer of the Communists as voiced by Deputy Froelich.

By a vote of 193 to 166 the reichstag rejected the resolution to try Von Kahr, Hitler and Ludendorff for high treason as the result of the recent outbreaks in Bavaria.

TROUBLE FEARED

When Military Control Commission Resumes Its Operations.

Berlin, Nov. 24.—Serious consequences are feared in the next few days when, as a result of instructions from Premier Poincare of France, the interallied military control commission resumes its operations in Germany. Poincare's instructions to General Nollet, head of the commission in Berlin, are understood to be that nothing must divert him from the most rigid investigation of the present status of armament in Germany. "That Germany has violated the Versailles treaty in regard to military control is not doubted," declared one of the highest allied diplomats. "Every barracks and the arms and munitions of each separate battalion of the reichswehr will be inspected. We have every reason to believe that the 100,000 reichswehr provided for by the treaty of Versailles has been exceeded."

Struck by an Automobile.

Cincinnati, Nov. 24.—Death of W. O. Robinson, 68, who was struck by an automobile, is the fifth auto fatality in as many days this week. Ferdinand Saulberger, 20, auto driver, was charged with manslaughter in the death of Robinson.

Wittenberg Wins.

New Concord, O., Nov. 24.—Wittenberg college defeated Muskingum college here in a football game by the score of 14 to 0.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Alleged Election Bettors Indicted.

Portsmouth, O., Nov. 24.—Sixteen men were indicted for alleged election betting. The list includes Scott W. Wilson, real estate dealer; Dr. Burton, Dr. A. C. Lowry and Postmaster A. W. Abele. Nicholas McMahon, Jr., manager of a theater, was indicted for alleged giving away of prizes to patrons of his theater. F. Campbell, Harry Ulrich and Ernest J. Porter, as the committee of the United Commercial Travelers, which organization recently gave away an automobile, also were indicted.

Missing Student Found.

Delaware, O., Nov. 24.—John Nevin Blair, Ohio Wesleyan university freshman, missing from Delaware since Nov. 1, was found working on a road gang near Louisville, Ky. Blair's father, who came here from his home in Oklahoma to aid in the search for his son, returned here from Louisville with the boy and later left for Oklahoma. Young Blair said he had become discouraged in his school work and left school. He is 16.

Klan Picture Approved.

Columbus, Nov. 24.—The Ohio censor board has approved "The Toll of Justice," a motion picture produced by the Ku Klux Klan, and in which the actors wear masks in most of the scenes. The picture has been produced in and around Columbus. The film is not propaganda, according to the board, and contains nothing that warrants its being prohibited from showing in Ohio.

Skeleton Found.

Gallipolis, O., Nov. 24.—Road men unearthed a skeleton of a man in a box while grading the highway near Point Pleasant, on the north bank of the Kanawha river. The skeleton is believed to be that of Enoch Jeffers, who was dragged from his sick bed and shot to death by "bushwhackers" in 1864, because of his sympathy for the Confederacy.

Harding Memorial Week.

Columbus, Nov. 24.—Governor Donahay has issued a proclamation urging Ohioans to subscribe to the Harding memorial fund and designating the week beginning Dec. 3 as Harding Memorial week. "Ohio should not fail in the matter of honoring one of Ohio's distinguished sons," said the governor in his proclamation.

Girls Missing.

Cleveland, Nov. 24.—A school girl composition describing the wonders and beauties of Porto Rico is the only new clew which police have to locate Jennie Woyelek, 14, and Mary Saleto, 12, who disappeared from their homes Wednesday night.

Burns Prove Fatal.

Youngstown, O., Nov. 24.—James Norris, 23, died of burns received in an explosion at the corning mill of the Grasselli Chemical company, at Quaker Falls, near here. Asa Burton, 53, was killed instantly in the blast. Norris died in Youngstown hospital.

Gunboat Sinks.

Vera Cruz, Nov. 24.—The gunboat Sonora of the Mexican navy sank at her moorings. What caused the vessel to sink is a mystery, but the department of war and marine announced that the hull will not be raised as the boat was of an obsolete type.

Bandits Seize Payroll.

Cleveland, Nov. 24.—Two bandits held up and robbed W. J. Schaefer and F. A. Deahl, officers of the Grief Brothers' Copperage company of Cleveland, as they carried a $8,000 payroll from a bank to the factory. The men escaped in an automobile.

WET AND DRY ISSUE BOBS UP

Enlivens Contest Over Organization of House.

LONGWORTH ISSUES APPEAL

Urges "Team Work" If the Republicans Are to Have "Any Chance of Success" in the Coming Presidential Election—Ohioan in Contest For Floor Leadership With Graham of Illinois.

Washington, Nov. 24.—An appeal for "team work" if the Republicans are to have any chance of success in the coming presidential election, and injection of the wet and dry issue, further enlivened the contest within the Republican party over organization of the house.

Representative Nicholas Longworth, candidate of the regulars for the majority floor leadership, made public a letter he had written to all Republican members, urging the necessity of presenting a solid front to keep the Democrats from running away with the legislative program.

Representative Lon B. Colton of Utah, a supporter of Representative William J. Graham of Illinois for the leadership, formally charged Longworth with being a wet and advocated his defeat on that ground. Colton pointed out that with the hardest fight yet made on the Volstead law in prospect, the judiciary committee, which has jurisdiction over prohibition bills, is scheduled to be headed by Representative George S. Graham of Pennsylvania, "one of the most bitter and able opponents of prohibition." The Utah member overlooked the fact that Speaker Gillett is a wet, but he added: "And now, to add Mr. Longworth as floor leader, thus giving all key positions in the house organization to the wets is asking too much."

While the Longworth and Graham factions continued their battle, the liberal Republican bloc's plans to tie up the organization of the house unless satisfactory concessions in committee assignments are granted, went forward. Representative John M. Nelson of Wisconsin, head of this group, said all its members were here or on their way and a caucus to determine upon a definite course soon would be held.

Bloc's Strength.

It is conceded that this bloc has sufficient strength to prevent the Republicans from organizing the house, unless there is wholesale absenteeism on the Democratic side. Democratic leaders assert that this will not occur. Nelson declares this power will be used.

On the other side, with but 15 members less than the Republicans have, the Democrats are laying back and enjoying the fun. With harmony and a solid front said to be assured the minority leaders look forward to a most successful session from their viewpoint.

Representative Longworth's letter was in the nature of a reply to the statement of Representative Graham, accepting the nomination of his friends for the leadership. Longworth took issue with Graham's charge of sectionalism in the event of the Ohioan's election and retorted that his election could not mean sectionalism any more than could the selection of a member from Illinois. Longworth said he had hoped for substantial unanimity in the organization of the house, "but in view of recent developments, I take this opportunity of saying that I am in this fight and to stay."

GAINING RECRUITS

Campaign to Drive Immoral Productions From the Stage.

New York, Nov. 24.—The campaign to drive immoral productions from the New York stage continues to gain recruits. Following the recent appeal of Fred Stone, the comedian, that the theater be purged "for the sake of the profession," to which he has just given his daughter, Dorothy, others have taken up the hue and cry. Ministers of the city have named four plays, two dramas and two musical comedies, they want to see closed. Police Commissioner Enright has appointed three policemen to visit the Broadway playhouses and report on whether licenses should be revoked.

The Rev. George M. Elsbree joined the drive. He has affiliated himself with a committee of 50 that will pass judgment on plays. The committee will include church worker, club women and laymen.

PACKERS TO FIGHT

Resist Federal Government Order Audit Their Books.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—The great packing houses of Chicago have notified the United States and audit the books. Led by Swift & Company and the Cudahy Packing company, the packers announced they would fight the order of Henry C. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, commanding them to make available their books and records for federal auditors.

"We claim on behalf of our 45,000 stockholders the right which the constitution guarantees to all citizens being permitted (in the absence of specific charges) to conduct our business peacefully, without interference from government agents," L. F. Swift, president of Swift & Company, declared in a formal statement. "If the government has power to maintain accountants in our office, as it claims, it also would have power to establish such accountants permanently in a business offices in the country, a situation on which we believe is unthinkable."

WITH CONCERN

American Government Would View the Collapse of Germany.

Washington, Nov. 24.—President Coolidge feels that the United States together with the other nations of the civilized world would view with a great deal of concern the collapse of Germany, it was learned at the white house following the receipt of news telling of the fall of the Stresemann cabinet. The president, it was stated in his behalf, expects that another government will be formed at Berlin, just as would be the case elsewhere.

Mr. Coolidge, it was added in his behalf, is disinclined to allow the use of the $187,000,000 in the possession of the alien property custodian for the purpose of extending credits to promote trade with Germany and the remainder of central Europe. The president does not feel that the government should use credit in such a way in competition with financial institutions.

Popocatepetl in Eruption.

Mexico City, Nov. 24.—Mount Popocatepetl has again developed into an active volcano. It belched great quantities of ashes, followed later by molten lava. Panic-stricken natives are fleeing the towns to escape the danger. Arrivals from the volcanic regions state that the showers of ashes have completely devastated great fields of grain.

CLINIC PERMITTED

Fight For Birth Control Won in the Chicago Courts.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—The fight for birth control was won in the Chicago courts. A clinic, the first in America, will be established here, it was announced. The foundation for the clinic was laid when Judge Harry M. Fisher in circuit court granted a writ of mandamus directing Mayor Dever and Health Commissioner Burdette to issue a license for a "parents' clinic" to be opened in Chicago. In ordering the Chicago officials to permit the clinic Judge Fisher said he could not subscribe to the arguments that such a clinic would tend to increase immorality.

1. I will sing you a song of that beau-ti-ful land, The far a-way home
2. Oh, that home of the soul in my visions and dreams, Its bright, jas-per walls
3. That un-chang-a-ble home is for you and for me, Where Je-sus of Naz-
4. Oh, how sweet it will be in that beau-ti-ful land, So free from all sor-

of the soul, Where no storms ever beat on the glittering strand, While the years
I can see; Till I fan-cy but thin-ly the veil in-ter-venes Be-tween ar-eth stands, The King of all king-doms for-ev-er is He, And He holder and pain; With songs on our lips and with harps in our hands, To meet of e-ter-ni-ty roll, While the years of e-ter-ni-ty roll; Where no storms the fair cit-y and me, De-tween the fair cit-y and me; Till I fan-cush our crowns in His hands; And He holdeth our crowns in His hands; The King one an-oth-er a-gain, To meet one an-oth-er a-gain; With songs

er-er beat on the glit-ter-ing strand, While the years of e-ter-ni-ty roll, cy but thin-ly the veil in-ter-venes Be-tween the fair cit-y and me, of all king-doms for-ev-er is He, And He holdeth our crowns in His hands, on our lips and with harps in our hands, To meet one an-oth-er a-gain.

One time in Philadelphia, I went to visit the old ladies in the Methodist Old Ladies' Home. They took me upstairs and introduced me to a beautiful old lady 107 years of age. We talked about the days and incidents of her childhood, about her people,—her mind was clear and active,—she could talk intelligently about the things that happened away back there. She put her arm thru mine and walked down the stairway with me to the dining room where I sang and played for the old ladies who had gathered there; then she walked back with me to the elevator which would take her back to her room. As she started to step into the elevator, she turned and held out her withered hand to me, and said, "Well, good bye, come again when you can stay," and altho I will possibly never be allowed to go back and stay at the old ladies' home, still thru this one sentence of this dear old saint, I caught a vision of that beautiful hospitality that had been a part of her life all these many years and I could see in my imagination, how she had so many times dismissed her own guests with that phrase, "Come again when you can stay,"—that it was the most natural thing in the world for her to invite me back to the Old Ladies' Home, to stay.

I went to see a crowd of beautiful, sweet, gray haired, wrinkled faced old ladies in a western state one time. I played on the trombone,—then I sang for them. I was rather proud of my singing in those days. After I played one selection and sang one, I said, "Now my time is just a bit limited, and I want to know which you like better, my singing or the trombone, so I will know what to do the most of." Almost unanimously these old ladies said they liked the trombone the best. Then one of them with her beautiful spirit, fearing that I might be hurt at their decision came up and took my hand and explained to me that most of the old ladies were deaf and couldn't hear what I said when I sang and they could hear the trombone and that was the reason they liked it the better, so I didn't feel so badly about it after all.

Here in this old ladies' home, I saw one of the finest examples of cooperation and mutual help that I have ever seen. There were two old ladies who were chums,—one was blind and the other was deaf,—the deaf one would lead the blind one around and the blind one would hear and understand and explain what was being said to the deaf one. The guide of this happy pair brought her friend up to me and said:

"My friend here wants to 'see' that horn" I divined right away that her method of seeing was to put her hands on it and feel the shape of it, around and put the mouthpiece up to so I put the trombone together and put it into her hands. Then I turned it around and put the mouthpiece to her lips and explained to her how to make a tone on the trombone. With tremendous effort, she blew a blast loud enough even for her deaf friend to hear; all the old ladies clapped their hands and laughed with glee just like little children and I believe they considered that the very best part of all the entertainment.

Just here the other day in Chattanooga I went to the Old Ladies' Home. I usually play some songs of good cheer, like "Brighten the Corner Where You Are," "Every Cloud Will Wear a Rainbow, if Your Heart Keeps Right" Sometimes I play "Yankee Doodle," "Dixie," "Turkey in the Straw" and some of the other old time tunes that I know they will recognize, but when I ask them for the song they want me to sing it is usually one of the wonderful old hymns and most of the time, the beautiful song, "The Home of the Soul." As I started to play it over here the other day, the old ladies would join in with their quivering voices. I could see the "far away" look come into their eyes; using my own imagination just the slightest bit I could see how they were each one going back to the days of their youth and strength, when they had homes and families and responsibilities of their own, then they would turn and look on down in the other direction across the river to that place of reunion when they would once again meet with all the loved ones who had gone on before.

One dear, white-haired old lady said to me as I finished "Thank you so much for playing that song That was my mother's favorite song She's over there now. Sometime before long we will meet and clasp hands once more, and sing again on that beautiful shore, the songs we learned to love here on earth." Again I found a great wealth of blessing to carry with me thruout life.

A great field for unexpected blessings we find among the children many times. In Chattanooga, I had a meeting for boys and girls. The day was dark and gloomy and rainy. While there was a fairly good crowd there were not as many as we had hoped would come, but I went on with the meeting just the same. At the close of the service, I gave an invitation to those who definitely wanted to accept Christ as their Saviour to come down around to the front where we could have a little special word of explanation with them and have a prayer together.

Several of them did come, possibly seventy-five or eighty children. As I went away from the meeting, however I found myself wondering if I had really made it plain,—wondering just a bit if it was worth while after all. Just a few days afterward, someone came to me and told me of one little girl among those who had come forward in the meeting. Her father was not a Christian. He had arranged for her to take dancing lessons. The dancing lesson came at the same time as the meeting. Circumstances and conditions were such that if she would go to the meeting, she would have to give up her dancing lessons, because she could not continue in the class unless she had attended that particular one that afternoon. After a struggle, she decided to come to the meeting. She came forward and took her stand for Christ. When she went home, at the supper table, her father made some cynical, sarcastic remark about it and it almost broke her little heart. She left the table and went crying to her room. Of course, you can imagine how that affected the father. He saw he had made a mistake. There was nothing he could do then, but a little bit later, after he had gone into their sitting room, the little girl came and climbed up on his lap, put her arms around his neck, and said, "Papa, I gave my heart to Jesus this afternoon,—won't you come and be a Christian, too?" You can imagine how that would affect any father with a real heart or with real love for his little girl any time. I believe the children understand what it means to be a Christian even more than the grown folks, so we must not neglect them nor think lightly of their decisions.

HEAD-HUNTING A RELIGION

Its Abolition Leaves Natives of Solomon Islands Nothing to Live For.

Smug self-satisfaction usually characterizes the attitude of the white man in his dealings with so-called backward peoples. He takes neither the time nor the trouble to understand the races with which he comes in contact until it is too late.

Take, for instance, head-hunting in the Solomons. It was a widespread practice and it came to interfere with the planter in need of labor and the missionary in search of converts. So the administrator was called in. He put an end to head-hunting in short order in the islands where there were white residents, says J. D. Newsom.

Head-hunting was the focus around which centered all the social and religious institutions of the people. Heads were needed as propitiatory offerings to the tribal ghosts on such occasions as building a new house or making a new canoe. And not only were heads needed for religious purposes, but they stood in the close relation to pursuits of an economic nature.

The actual head-hunting expedition only lasted a few weeks, and the actual fighting often only a few hours, but this was the culmination of a process lasting over years. It was the rule that new canoes should be made for an expedition to obtain heads, and the manufacture of these meant work of an interesting nature lasting for many months, probably for years.

The process of canoe building was accompanied by rites and feasts which not only excited the liveliest interest, but also acted as stimuli to various activities of horticulture and pig-breeding. As the date fixed for the expedition approached even more rites and feasts were held.

In putting down head-hunting the alien rulers were destroying an institution which had its roots in the religion of the people and spread its branches throughout nearly every aspect of their culture. At one stroke these islanders lost their religion and their incentive to work and produce. They are dying of sheer boredom, for what has been offered them in exchange is too totally different to make the slightest appeal to their collective imagination.—Adventure Magazine.

Sultana of Sulu's Prayer.

I asked the sultana of Sulu to give me a message on a phonograph cylinder for our sultana and I would send it to Mrs. McKinley, says Lieut. Col. Sydney A. Cloman. She consented and without a moment's hesitation made a splendid record of a worthy message.

I never again doubted the keen intelligence of the old lady. It was to the effect that while she was poor and unwise and Mrs. McKinley was rich and powerful, yet she thought and worked only for the good of her people and hoped that Allah would spare her for a few years to make her people more worthy of the friendship and assistance that the Americans were bestowing upon them.

She closed with a little prayer for the health and happiness of our sultana and some nicely worded good wishes for Mr. McKinley.—World's Work Magazine.

Hare an "Old Settler."
With a known lineage trailing through 3,000 dusty years the hare may well be called one of the ancient inhabitants of the earth. Among the oldest Jews the hare and its near relative, the coney of the rocks, were excluded from the ranks of edible animals; but as the flesh of the hare was found to be both nutritious and wholesome the prejudice against it gradually disappeared and it began to be grown and domesticated for food.

BIBLE USED AS AN ORACLE
Persons "Seeking a Sign" Open Scriptures at Random and Find Message Upon Which Thumb Rests.

A common practice with those who "seek for a sign" is to open the Bible at random and find their answer in the passage upon which their thumb rests as they part the leaves.

In pagan times this divination was accomplished by placing the finger at random on a passage of Homer, Virgil, or some other great author. Virgil was a particular favorite, and the practice of consulting him continued down to modern times, though the Bible is the book now generally used.

During the Middle Ages Virgil became so enveloped in a mist of tradition and superstition that he was alluded to by the uneducated as "Virgil the Wizard"; and the popular estimation of the chief value of the "Aeneid" was as an oracle.

As late as the time of Charles I the Bible had not entirely supplanted the "Aeneid" for purposes of divination, as is evidenced by the well known story of how that monarch learned his fate by the "Sortes Virgilianae," as it was called.

This practice of divination by books is said to have "originated in the respect and veneration of certain books arising from their wisdom and reputation"; and it is easy to understand the psychology which induced people of the Middle Ages to consult "Virgil the Wizard," and leads men of a superstitious trend of mind today to turn the Bible into an oracle.

The beginning of the idea dates back to the first introduction of letters, when, to the common mind, there was something supernatural in the power of a few marks made in a certain way to convey from one person to another not merely ideas but whole speeches word for word.

The feeling is displayed today by remote tribes of savages when they see for the first time the use of the printed or written word in communication.—London Tit-Bits.

Order of St. Charles, Monaco
Monaco, a little country of only eight square miles, is an independent principality on the shores of the Mediterranean, near Nice. The famous town of Monte Carlo is within its boundaries. The government has an order, known as the Order of St. Charles. This order was established in 1858 by Prince Charles III to reward services rendered to the principality or to the reigning prince, says the Detroit News. Several Americans have been recipients of the honor. The badge is a white Maltese cross resting on a green wreath. In the center is the double monogram "C. C." and a crown on a crimson background, surrounded by the motto "Principes et Patria." The whole is surmounted by a crown. The ribbon is red, with a white band down the center.

SARAH WHITESIDE

Died at Home in Mt. Sterling—Funeral Services and Burial Sunday.

Sarah Celia Whiteside died at her home in Mt. Sterling Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. She was born in Roseville, Pennsylvania, and was the daughter of John and Mary Knapp Stage. On October 15, 1870, she was united in marriage to Thomas Whiteside, who survives. She leaves the following children: William Whiteside, of Cleveland; A. J. Whiteside, of Wilmington; Clinton Whiteside, of Darby township; Adah Wrightsel, of London; Katie Graham, Edward Whiteside and Maud Morris, of Mt. Sterling. She is also survived by two brothers and four sisters: Kate Koonitz and Ida Willoughby of Scioto township; Bert Stage, of Pennsylvania; John Stage and Emma Redding, of Mt. Sterling and Stella Barbee, Columbus. The funeral will be held from the Methodist Episcopal church at Mt. Sterling at 2 o'clock Sunday conducted by Rev. J. R. Fields. Interment in the Pleasant township cemetery.

HERE AND THERE

Three men broke into the room of Miss Olive Dupond, girl manager of the Bank Nationale, at St. Labore, Quebec, forced her to open the safe, took $8,000 in cash and escaped. It was the second time in three weeks the bank had been robbed, presumably by the same men. In the last robbery the bandits got $11,800.

Two neatly dressed bandits held up Further McGinnis, assistant cashier at the Central Avenue State bank at Indianapolis, and took $1,500 in cash from a counter drawer.

Ten bodies have been recovered from ruins of Vida Sugar Refinery at New Iberia, La., destroyed by boiler explosion.

After R. F. Conant and Hanford Warschauer, both of Milwaukee, and a woman passenger, fell 2,000 feet in an airplane, they were arrested at Waukegan, Ill., and fined $10 each because they landed without a permit. None was hurt.

Mrs. William Gendron and two sons, aged 11 and 8, burned to death in a fire which razed their home at Sherbrooke, Quebec.

PHYSICIAN LIVES
TO AID AFFLICTED

Least Reward for Dr. Wallace of Belmont, Kan., Is Love.

GAVE TOWN A SCHOOLHOUSE

I look forward each day with the thought that before the sun sets I may get to aid someone afflicted. That's what I live for.—The creed of Dr. Eugene Wallace of Belmont, Kan.

Ask any citizen of the little town of Belmont, Kan., if he knows Eugene Wallace. You'll be surprised at the answer you get. Dr. Wallace is the subject of more enthusiastic and favorable comment among the citizens of the little place than any other country physician in the state.

Belmont is about fifty miles southwest of Wichita in Kingman county and has a population of one hundred and fifty.

Held in High Esteem.

Dr. Wallace graduated from the medical department of the University of Illinois in June, 1905, and returned to Wichita, where his parents live. In a short time he found himself in Belmont, with the intention of staying but six months. He has been there for more than eighteen years.

In that time he has endeared himself to the citizens of the place as no other man in the town has done. Doctors have come to stay awhile since Dr. Wallace has been there, but all moved on. When times have been hard and his people were unable to pay him, he ministered to them regardless. As a consequence they think he is one of the greatest physicians in the state and will call no other doctor.

Built School for Town.

In addition to his ability as a practitioner he has business capabilities which he has used in building up the town. When the need for a high school was felt two years ago a move was made to vote bonds for it. Several persons bitterly opposed it from a taxation standpoint, and defeated the plan. Dr. Wallace then built a $3,500 school house with his own money.

The Farmers' State Bank of Belmont failed in August, 1922. It was not long until farmers and business men realized the need for a bank. The doctor, with several other citizens, founded the Belmont State bank, July 27, 1923, and placed Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wells in charge.

Aids Blind Boy.

He is one of the leading figures in the Methodist church and is responsible for a boy in Kingman being pastor of it, Robert Means, a blind boy, wondered how he was to finance himself in Friends university here. His worries were told to Dr. Wallace.

"Come preach for us this winter," the doctor said, "and we'll see you safely through school."

So the blind boy is preparing himself for the ministry through the kindness and philanthropy of the people of that community. Since he started preaching he has built up the membership of that church and the attendance to unprecedented figures.

"My driver is always ready," is a sign of the doctor's on his drug store window. His resourcefulness is known by the number of telephones he has at his store and at his home—five in each place. They connect directly to as many towns and he usually is in demand at one of the places.

"I Live to Aid Someone."

"Do you regret having come to a small town?" he was asked.

"Not at all," he declared with emphasis, "the doctor's aim in life should be to relieve suffering humanity. One can do that as well here as he could in a big city, and besides, you get to know the people intimately, know their problems—in fact, know nearly everything that tends to bring you in closer touch with them. I haven't become rich, but I am comfortable and I look forward each day with the thought that before the sun sets I may get to aid someone afflicted. That's what I live for."

Dr. Wallace is married and has three sons, Dwight, fourteen; Dwane, twelve, and Dean, eight. He is forty-five years old and his strenuous life has developed for him a powerful physique.

WOMAN SPEEDER IS SHY

Too Bashful to Appear in Court, So Husband Acts as Proxy.

Dreading, through modesty and bashfulness, to appear before Judge Charles W. Boote in Yonkers court in New York to make her first report on probation, Mrs. Dorothy Scully, twenty-one, of 133 West Ninety-second street, Manhattan, waited outside the building and sent her husband inside as her proxy.

She traveled about twelve miles to report in court, and then did not have the courage to walk in. Her husband, appearing for her, told Judge Boote she was too shy to come in. The judge smiled and excused her, but advised her husband to caution her against further speeding in her automobile. Recently she was placed on probation on a speeding charge preferred by Police Sergeant Thomas Morrissey, who had handed her a summons.

Many Requests for Pensions.

As a result of the World war, the French pension office has received 2,500,000 claims for pension or allowance, of which number 1,712,000 were granted.

CURE FOR SEA SICKNESS

Origin of the Game of Mah Jongg Three Thousand Years Ago Told in Chinese Legend.

Some 3,000 years ago, according to the legend, there was a fisherman named Sze who lived on the shores of the East Chien lake near Ningpo. Sze's family had considerable wealth, and they backed him in the purchase of several boats.

Then he employed a hundred fishermen from other villages. All went well until the wind began to blow, for all of the fishermen were "land" fishermen. They became seasick and had to be taken ashore.

A family council was held, and it was decided that seasickness was merely a matter of the mind. Therefore the thing to do was to devise some method for getting the men's minds off their mal de mer. Fisherman Sze and his brothers then thought long and seriously, and the result was a game which they called Mah Diao. So there one has the origin of "Mah Chang," "Mah Choh," "Mah Jongg," "Mah Juck," "Pe Ling," "Pung Woo," "Mah Cheuk," or whatever you desire to call this game of the ancient Chinese.

Free State to Make Loan.

Dublin, Nov. 24.—The success of the Free State loan is assured, following the speech of Ernest Blythe, minister of the local government in support of the loan. Dublin commercial men promptly subscribed $2,500,000, and big commercial leaders throughout Ireland are sending in generous subscriptions.

Attempted to Hold Up Bank.

Cleveland, Nov. 24.—Four young bandits held up the South Side branch of the Cleveland Trust company, then fled empty handed when their intended victim, Samuel Klemosky, manager, sounded the burglar alarm. A fifth member of the band remained in an automobile outside the bank.

Four Boys Held.

Cincinnati, Nov. 24.—Four youths, arrested when their target shooting resulted in the death of Frank Vanovang, 13, on the porch of his home, are charged with manslaughter. Anthony Caletta, 23, one of the quartet, admitted owning the rifle with which the target shooting was done.

ROAD ROLLER

To be Purchased and City Building Will be Remodeled.

The city council met pursuant to adjournment Friday evening, November 23, with President Felix R. Caldwell presiding and all members present.

Mr. Jeffries, as chairman of the committee consisting of all the members of council to whom had been referred the matter of a purchase of a road roller recommended that the city purchase a road roller in a sum not to exceed $2000. This report was accepted.

An ordinance to issue and sell bonds for the purpose of remodeling, repairing and re-roofing with suitable materials for office purposes and other proper or required needs of a part or all of the city building was passed under suspension of the rules.

An ordinance amending ordinance No. 332 fixing the salary of the clerk of council of the city of Circleville, Ohio and repealing said original ordinance was passed under suspension of the rules.

THANKSGIVING

Program Rendered by Lutheran Brotherhood Thursday Evening.

The Lutheran Brotherhood met in the social room of the church on Thursday evening, November 22, after the regular business session. A Thanksgiving program was given with George C. Griffith in charge: "Origin of Thanksgiving" B. L. Hanselman; "What the City Man has to be Thankful For" Ed. Hulse; "Thanksgiving when I was a Boy" J. R. Noecker; "Stripes" R. L. Brehmer. The program was one to be long remembered by all present. An excellent lunch was served by Edward Ebert and his assistants. The next meeting will be held on December 13.

AMUSEMENTS

The manners, dress and customs of the folk of the 1850's are admirably shown in "Children of Jazz" a new Paramount picture, based on Harold Brighouse's play "Other Times," which will be on view at the Met theater for three days beginning Monday. Theorode Kosloff, Ricardo Cortez, Robert Cain and Eileen Percy, all well known screen players, are featured.

Richard Forestall, an adventurer, is the son of a queer man living on an island with a score or more of dependents, all of whom seemingly belong to the era of the fifties. Their dress, manners and social customs are so radically different from those of today as to render them racially distinct. It is these folk in the story that make "Children of Jazz" as different from the ordinary photoplay as day is from night.

It happens that Richard Forestall loves Babs Weston, daughter of a man of wealth. She is a modern jazz girl and when she engages herself to three men, Forestall renounces her in despair. She comes to the island with her jazz-loving friends in a hydroplane which is all but wrecked in a storm, and then things begin to happen. Thrill after thrill ensues until the climax which is one of the most novel ever pictured.

The picture was directed by Jerome Storm, who directed Charles Ray's most famous pictures. The adaptation was made by Beulah Marie Dix. The supporting cast is exceptionally artistic.

ALL DAY MEETING

Woman's Home Missionary Society Had Picnic Dinner and Supper.

One of the most interesting meetings on record in the Woman's Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church was the all day meeting held November 22. The families joined in a picnic dinner and supper and the ladies sewed upon articles for the supply box.

The program was most interesting and full of facts. Mrs. Paul Kelsner ably presented the chapter of the text book "Saving Young Bodies." Miss Phelps aroused much interest in the local conditions by her talk and the demonstration of her methods. Miss Letha Beavers impersonated Columbia in a spirited competitive presentation of facts about welfare work in the United States.

Delightful music was given by Miss Grimes, Mrs. Kelsner and Mrs. Johnson with Mrs. Smith as accompanist.

The programs on the text book "The Child and America's Future" are attracting many women interested in children and their welfare.

Chameleons' Food.

The proper diet of chameleons and lizards consists of flies and other insects; also meal worms, and the common idea that sugar and water will serve in winter is incorrect. A good many of these animals refuse food in the winter months and all of them need warmth and sunshine, as well as water. They are difficult to keep in health, and if not given their natural food will starve to death in time, though their ability to fast for long periods is well known.

DAYBREAK IN THE CATSKILLS

Delicate Streak of Lavender Bespeaks the New Day—Silence Interrupted by a "Whippoorwill."

The clock on the mantel strikes four. The only other sound is a momentary gnawing of wood by a field mouse somewhere on the roof. A delicate streak of lavender bespeaks the day, and the clock ticks on.

Again the hour strikes, and the narrow strip of lavender has widened. The deep blue of the night clouds has turned to soft gray, outlining a low ridge of mountains on the opposite side of the valley. The rich liquid note of a thrush rings through the stillness, then pauses, and all is quiet save the ticking of the clock. As the light increases, the sweet song of the thrush continues, interrupted only by an emphatic "Whippoorwill," repeated rapidly, and again there is silence. In the distance, a crow calls his flock to early matins. Somewhere in a nearby pine tree a red squirrel burrs and a chipmunk chips. Down in the meadow, far, far below, the tinkling of a cowbell announces the awakening of a cowbell. A gentle breeze rustles the foliage of some young oaks near the window, while the full melody of the thrush welcomes the rising sun.

Fisherman's Lucky Day.

A 14-carat gold band ring was found by John Moore, one of the crew of the fishing schooner Gertrude De Costa, inside a big halibut caught on George bank recently. The ring is a man's size and is believed to have been dropped overboard from some trans-Atlantic liner. Judging from its condition when recovered from the halibut's stomach by Moore, the ring had been lost recently. Moore will wear it, as there is no way of determining the ownership.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

AT THE COURT HOUSE

Suit For Money.

Frank A. Brown of Ross county, has filed a suit against Samuel Kendrick for money only in common pleas court amount claimed $250. Wilby G. Hyde represents the plaintiff.

Turbans and Nests.

The turban is a fashionable head-dress in Burma, and each girl eagerly looks forward to the time when it will be her privilege to swathe her head in yards and yards of dark cloth. But, until she has found a young man who is willing to build her a bamboo house and to raise rice for her, she cannot wear this coveted headdress. Because among the Kachins unmarried girls are not permitted to wear a turban nor do they let their hair grow long. They wear bobbed hair and have done so for centuries. But the day a Kachin girl is married she lets her hair grow and binds it up with the turban, which she wears with pride. For the turban marks her as a married woman.

Duplicity Exposed.

A story is told of a country dweller who had sadly neglected his worship. A deputation from the class meeting urged his reappearance. He took part in a prayer meeting on his return, and was offering loud thanksgiving for the privilege of meeting together for worship, when suddenly one of the deputation shouted: "Dinna believe 'im. Lord; we'd a terrible hard job to get 'im back."—London Answers.

Save Paraffin From Lily Cups.

By means of a process developed by the United States forestry products laboratory, both the paraffin and the cup contained in discarded waxed paper are now recovered. In view of extensive use of the individual drinking cups the saving represented by this process is very great.

Not Merely Ordinary Hunger.

My aunt, who is noted for her skill at baking cakes and cookies, is very popular with the younger members of our family. One day while my small brother, aged 4, was visiting her he mentioned that he was hungry. Upon being presented with a piece of bread and butter, he said, "Oh, thank you; I'm not that kind of hungry, I'm only cake hungry."—Exchange.

Solitudes of the Earth.

The Bushmanland desert, in southwest Africa, is but little known. A few nomads—some of European and some of mixed descent—hang on its fringe. Here and there mat-house villages, whose dwellers depend on the sparse bounty of the sky, will perhaps be found for a season. Otherwise it is a barren desert of 50,000 square miles.

Coat as Gorgeous as Bright Navajo Blanket

Warm woolen material, heavily embroidered, is the interesting feature of this new French coat. Broad bands of fox trim the collar, cuffs and hem.

Should Consider Your Windows and Hangings

No one would quarrel with the statement that windows are for the purpose of admitting light and air into a room. But that windows enter far more extensively into the planning of a house than the foregoing statement would seem to imply is also easily to be understood. We must consider them as decorative units from the outside of the house and from the inside of the various rooms. These two viewpoints must be closely related, while at the same time recognizing that they are different problems. Then, too, windows must be considered from the purely decorative standpoint—the utilitarian side entirely forgotten.

Windows, therefore, for much of the time that we spend in our homes are as much a part of the purely decorative of its finish as is the cornice, dado, etc. In addition to these various phases of window treatment we have to consider window draperies and shades.

From all of these aspects we discover that in planning and in finishing much consideration must be given to position, actual and relative size, character, furnishing accessories.

Windows should not exceed the bounds of utilitarianism, beyond this they automatically become inartistic. Any light, to be agreeable to the human eye, must not be exaggerated. Just as there should be no uncovered electric light bulb in the house so should there be no window admitting intolerable light.

Blue Is Among Favored
Fabrics for Evening

Among the colors that have been introduced for the present season one finds a marked favor accorded certain shades of blue, notably those that are found in the art work and embroideries of China. Distinguished by brilliancy, they are handled with great skill and are vastly more becoming than one would suspect, for in modern designing even the smallest bit of color is employed with telling effect.

Sapphire blue comes in for a great deal of attention, especially in frocks designed for evening wear. Almost without exception they are fashioned on slender, graceful lines, with a note of contrast introduced in silver embroideries or motifs of crystal beads and brilliants.

As an exception to the general scheme of blue and crystal, one frock is of sapphire blue velvet, but its sole decoration consists of appliques of chiffon in shades of mauve and orchid. Accompanying this is a cape of velvet in the same tone lined with cloth of silver shot with mauve.

Snap-on Trimmings May Be Applied to Same Hat

Five different kinds of snap-on trimmings may be applied to the same hat. Either a small cloche shape or a large mushroom is good, though the trimmings may be applied to any shape whatever.

One trimming consists of three wheel ornaments made of ribbon and attached to a band of ribbon which culminates in a semitailored bow. Snaps are fastened to this trimming on the under side to correspond with snaps that have been sewn to the hat, so that all lady has to do is look over her array of ribbon trimmings and choose the one that matches her costume and snap it onto her hat. When a new costume is worn she merely unsnaps this trimming, chooses another and applies it in the same way.

Taffeta Pillows Are Most Attractive. Taffeta pillows of all shapes and sizes are seen in an interesting display. They are particularly attractive when made of changeable taffeta and simply trimmed with rows of the new narrow ribbons that have a suggestion of metal about them.

Graphite Paint.

The growing exclusion of lead from paint, on the ground of its poisonous character, has led to the introduction of graphite as a substitute, particularly in the place of red lead in the painting of iron. Mixed with linseed oil, graphite protects the iron against rust, and is much cheaper than red lead. So many new uses have been found for graphite, which not long ago was employed almost exclusively for the manufacture of what we call "lead pencils," that large quantities are now made with the electric furnace, the natural deposit of the mineral not being sufficient to supply the demand.

First American Grammarian.

The first American grammarian to attain distinction, Lindley Murray, died nearly a century ago. He was a native of Pennsylvania and a Quaker, and his famous "Grammar of the English Language" was the first textbook of its kind written by an American to be used in the schools on this side of the Atlantic. It first appeared in 1795.

THE WONDER OF THE AGE

THE HOT BLAST
AIR TIGHT

FLORENCE

NO SMOKE! NO SOOT! NO DIRT! NO CLINKERS!
EVERYTHING IS CONSUMED.

At the end of the season's use with soft coal there will be no soot in the pipe or flue

The Zenith of Stove Perfection

The only jointless leg bottom and base with full radiation and large ash pan that is on the market! or has ever been made in the history of the stove industry.

The jointless leg bottom and base makes the stove air-tight below the grate, which is the only true fire keeping principle.

It will be as good a fire keeper twenty years hence as it is today.

The Hot Blast Air-Tight Florence will heat twice the space that can be heated by any other stove on earth at one-half the cost.

The only perfect floor heater that is or has ever been made.

All features are patented and no stove manufacturer, dealer or user can copy or use same until the expiration of the patent without incurring liability for an action for damages.

THE HOT BLAST AIR-TIGHT FLORENCE burns soft coal or slack and all the smoke and gases. No filling up of the stove, pipe or flue with soot. No dirt inside or outside the house. It will burn hard coal and all the gases which escape from the hard coal base burner. It will burn wood and sawdust, wet or dry. It will produce one-half less ashes than any other stove on earth with any kind of fuel and leave no clinkers or half consumed fuel.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

PROBATE COURT,
PICKAWAY COUNTY, OHIO.

In pursuance of an order of the Probate Court of Pickaway County, Ohio, I will offer at public sale on the 17th DAY OF DECEMBER, 1923,

at 1 o'clock P. M., at the door of the court house in the city of Circleville, Ohio, the following described real estate situated in the county of Pickaway, in the state of Ohio and in Muhlenberg Township and described as follows:

FIRST TRACT.—Being a part of original survey No. 513, beginning at a stone in the center of the road, Southwest corner to Redman land, thence with the original line N. 21 degrees W. 25 chains, and 28 links to a point in the center of the pike, 1 chain 83 links, S. 21 degrees East of a stone, corner to Samuel Williamson's land, thence S. 2 degrees E. 23 chains and 20 links to a stone; thence S. 86 1/2 degrees E. 8 chains and 15 links to the beginning, containing 9 acres and 42 poles of land, more or less, being the piece of land that was deeded to Thomas and Elizabeth Graham by B. Grow Cucumbers in Greenhouses

It Is One of the Most Promising of Vegetable-Forcing Crops Produced.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Directions for the growing of greenhouse cucumbers are given in Farmers' Bulletin 1320, "The Production of Cucumbers in Greenhouses," by James H. Beattie, horticulturist, of the United States Department of Agriculture, which has just been released for distribution.

Greenhouse-grown cucumbers, says the bulletin, occupy a high place in the estimation of those who have learned to appreciate their superior quality. While the cucumber is not high in food value, it is extremely popular, owing to the fact that it is an appetizer with a sprightly flavor which appeals to most palates. The development of the vegetable-forcing industry in this country was largely influenced by the winter demand for cucumbers, lettuce, and tomatoes, and these have always been the most important vegetable-forcing crops produced in the various sections of the United States. According to available records, cucumbers are second in importance, with lettuce occupying first place. These crops represent at least 90 per cent of the $15,000,000 annual value of the vegetable-forcing crops produced in this country.

Factors Influence Growth.

Many factors have influenced the growth of the vegetable-forcing industry in the sections where it has attained considerable importance. The modern forcing house makes it possible to produce a high-grade product over a wide range of seasons and to put it on the market within a few hours after it is harvested. Cucumbers grown in this manner can be carried to the proper stage of maturity on the vines and put into the hands of the consumer in a fresh state. Few vegetables lose more in quality by not being served perfectly fresh than does the cucumber. The use of the forcing house makes it possible to mature the crop at seasons when the outdoor-grown crop is not available. Moreover, it is possible to grow greenhouse cucumbers so that they can be marketed in competition with much of the outdoor-grown crop produced in the winter-gardening sections of the country, which has been off the plant for a considerable period and which must bear an exceedingly high transportation and handling cost before it reaches the consumer.

Essentials for Success.

Success depends on the kind of greenhouse used, the availability of cheap fuel and labor, ready access to suitable markets, and close attention to details, says Mr. Beattie. Cucumber forcing is a highly specialized form of work, and under favorable conditions the industry is profitable. The bulletin discusses the essentials of the industry including the best types of greenhouses to use, soils and fertilizers, varieties to grow, management of the crop, harvesting and marketing, and other crops to grow during the short days of midwinter.

The yields depend upon the care and attention given the crop. Under favorable conditions from 30 to 90 cucumbers may be expected from each plant. As many as 100 to 120 cucumbers have often been gathered from a single plant. As a rule, heavier yields will be secured from spring grown cucumbers than are had from a fall or winter crop. The price received varies greatly and may range from as low as 50 cents to $2 or more per dozen.

The cucumber is one of the most promising of the vegetable-forcing crops, but it can be successfully produced only by paying close attention to all the details of this highly specialized industry. Copies of the bulletin may be secured by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., as long as the supply lasts.

Satisfactory Formula for Damp-Proof Facing

A very satisfactory damp-proof kalsomine for plaster walls is made as follows: Take 16 pounds of paris white, or extra glider's whiting and dissolve it in one gallon of boiling water; soak half a pound of white sizing glue for four hours in half a gallon of cold water and dissolve in a water bath; dissolve one-quarter pound phosphate of soda in one-eighth of a gallon of boiling water; mix the first and last mixtures together and then add the second. If a thicker stock is required use a half gallon of water instead of a gallon in which to dissolve the paris white.

Artificial Lights Will Increase Egg Production

Addition of extra windows, particularly near the floor will allow more light to enter the houses in the early evenings of winter and keep the chickens from going to roost. This addition will increase the length of the day for the chickens and have a good result on egg production. Many poultrymen have installed electrical apparatus in the poultry houses so that lights can be turned on in the early morning to get the poultry to scratching and feeding earlier. The lights can also be kept on in the afternoons with better production results. The difference in the number of eggs produced will more than pay the additional costs of increased light.

Flight of Geese.

When flocks of wild ducks and geese have to go long distances they form a triangle to cleave the air more easily, and the most courageous bird takes position at the forward angle. As this is a very fatiguing post, another bird ere long takes the place of the exhausted leader.

Date of Christ's Birth.

The Christian era, first used by a monk, Dionysius Exiguus, in the year 533 A. D. and adopted by Christian nations at a later period, was intended to begin with the birth of Christ. Dionysius is believed, however, to have made an error in fixing that event in the year of Rome 754 instead of 750. Christ's birth is now considered to have taken place in or before the year 4 B. C.

BUFFALO AGAIN TO LIVE WHERE FIRST DISCOVERED

White Men First Viewed Animals in Mexico 400 Years Ago.

Washington.—The recent gift of three buffalo to the government of Mexico recalls the discovery and early history of these big game animals. The gift will be sent from the herd maintained by the United States Department of Agriculture on the Wichita game preserve, Oklahoma, to the zoological park in the City of Mexico, almost on the very spot where the buffalo was first discovered by Europeans.

The biological survey points out that 400 years ago, when Cortez entered Montezuma's capital, on the present site of the City of Mexico, white men had their first view of buffalo, a herd of which was maintained in the menagerie of the emperor. This was in 1521, when buffalo roamed in millions over the tablelands of northern Mexico and the great plains of the present western United States.

An early writer, Antonio de Solis, who first described Montezuma's menagerie, declared that the greatest rarity in the collection was the "Mexican bull," which had crooked shoulders, a bunch on its back like the camel, and its neck covered with hair like the lion. It was in these terms that he characterized the American buffalo or bison.

As a manifestation of good-will toward our southern neighbor, a gift of three buffalo was tendered the Mexican government by the United States Department of Agriculture and the New York Zoological society.

Gets Chairs Made of Tree Planted by Queen

Hingham, Mass.—Wood from an oak tree planted by Queen Elizabeth went into the making of three chairs which have been shipped from Hingham, Norfolk, England, to this town. They are the gift of Harry C. Tofts, a builder in the English Hingham, to the Bay state township which was founded by men from the Norfolk town in the Seventeenth century.

Sixteen years ago the top of the tree planted by the great queen in Kimberly park died and it became necessary to fell it. Mr. Tofts bought the timber and made the chairs, which were designed by Hugh Mottram after a model of a chair in the period when the Hingham men emigrated to America. Mr. Tofts stipulated that one of them should be used by the chairman of the board of selectmen, one placed in the first parish meeting house, erected in 1681, and the third to go to the minister of the First Parish church in perpetuity.

Wonderful Feat of Surgery in France

Paris.—Two cases of what has been considered hitherto an incurable disease were presented lately to the Society of Neurology of Paris. Tumors pressing on the spinal marrow have always proved fatal owing to the difficulty of diagnosing them and of locating them. Professor Sicard has introduced a method of injecting iodized oil into the bony canal formed by the vertebrae of the spine which enables an X-ray to be taken, showing where the iodine has been deposited, and where the deposit has been interrupted by the tumor. The exact spot for operating is thus seen.

The application of this method is described as delicate but not extremely difficult, nor beyond the power of any good surgeon.
